

Rail Rates Boost Hits Local Prices

Victoria Car Dealers Suffer Most From 12% Interim Boost

OTTAWA (CP)—An interim freight-rate increase of 12 per cent—third since 1947 and estimated to add $54,000,000 a year to the national freight bill—was awarded the railways today by the Board of Transport Commissioners.

Victoria reaction to the boost was immediate. Dealers gloomily admitted today that so far as they can see the 12 per cent interim increase on trans-continental railway freight rates means only one thing—higher price tags on all commodities which come from the east.

Most business houses said the added costs would take effect gradually as old stock is disposed of and new stock rolls in to take its place.

Auto dealers will be hard hit by the increase. New car prices, it is estimated, will add another $25 or $35 to cover the new freight tariff. At present, dealers here pay about $265 freight charges on each machine shipped from Windsor to Victoria by rail. The new percentage increase, allowed the railways by the Board of Transport Commissioners, will boost this charge to about $297.

STABILIZE RATES

At the same time, the board served notice it is going to move for implementation of some major recommendations of the Royal Commission on transportation, sought particularly by the west and the maritimes.

This implementation would have the effect of holding down rates on the long-haul traffic and movement of basic commodities that is heavy in the outlying provinces, and possibly also of having Ontario and Quebec absorb a greater share of future rate increases.

The board in its judgment promised an extensive investigation into these points starting here Nov. 12. Meanwhile granting a straight temporary increase to carry the railways over expense hurdles caused by higher materials prices and wage costs arising from settlement of last August's general rail strike. The strike resulted in higher pay and a short work week for railwaymen.

Fire Dangers Lessened As Temperatures Fall

Twenty-four forest fires were burning in the Vancouver forest district this afternoon, but all except a few were under control.

The big fire still remains the Elk River fire which has swept over 30 square miles near Campbell River. Seven hundred and fifty men are being kept on duty combating this fire, although lower temperatures and higher humidity Tuesday provided real relief. Rain fell near the fire yesterday and a slight drizzle is falling today.

Forest Minister E. T. Kenney and his deputy, Dr. C. D. Orchard, remained up-land today.

The minister and deputy flew over the Elk River fire area upon arrival at the scene Tuesday afternoon and were scheduled to drive to the fire lines today to confer with those directing fire-fighting operations on the ground.

The pair are expected to return to their Victoria offices Thursday.

In the Squamish area there are three fires burning under control with 45 men in attendance; at Chilliwack one fire under control and six men; and at Sechart, one fire under control and 30 men.

Seventy-five men are being kept on duty at Pender Harbor watching the three fires there that are reportedly in check, while at Port Hardy, on the northern tip of the island, the only fire is an old one being held in check by a small patrol.

Elsewhere on the island there are three fires in the Courtenay area; three in the Nanaimo area and one in the Langford section. All are under control.

On Redondo Island, 38 men are working to put a guard around a fire which is not yet under control there. There is one fire at both Thurston and Harrison, but both are under control.

Reds Agree To Talks

BERLIN (AP)—Russia agreed tonight to resume four-power talks on Berlin trade, the first time they have joined the West here officially in almost two years.

U.S. Sub Due Here

The United States submarine Cabezón under the command of Lt. Cdr. J. C. Wheeler Jr., will arrive at Esquimalt on July 20 for a three-day visit, it was announced by Pacific Command headquarters today.

Canada's Cost-Of-Living Index Reaches All-Time High At 184.1

OTTAWA (CP)—Sparked mainly by higher food prices, the cost-of-living index in May rose 2.1 points to a new high of 184.1 from 182.0, the Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Prices were higher for eggs, butter, pork, fresh vegetables, hardware, electrical equipment, clothing generally, health care, gasoline, rents and street car fares.

Two-thirds of the increase was attributed to higher food prices. The index is based on 1935-39 prices equaling 100.

A food sub-index rose 4.4 points to a record 239.8 from 235.4 after a three-point decline in April.

The rent sub-index jumped 2.2 points to a record 139.8 from 137.6, following a regular quarterly survey of rental costs.

A boost in the cost of hardware and electrical equipment sent the home furnishings and services

'LITTLE HOPE' FOR RAIN AS CLOUDY SKIES CLEAR

Hopes for rain over drought-hit southern Vancouver Island suffered a blow today as the Gonzales weatherman said cloudy skies today would probably clear by tonight.

"There is little hope for rain in the next 24 hours," he added.

The disturbance which was expected to bring showers here by today is now being dissipated. It brought some rain to Estevan, Alberni and Vancouver areas.

It will be cool again throughout today and tonight, the weatherman said, with a daytime maximum of between 60 and 62.

BRITAIN STUDYING IRAN COMPROMISES

Understood Proposals Concern Only Fight Over Receipts To Be Given Oil Tankers

LONDON (Reuters)—Iran has moved to ease her oil dispute with Britain by offering a set of compromise proposals designed to keep the oil flowing from the refinery at Abadan, it was learned today.

British Oil Men Prepare To Quit Iran

TEHRAN, Iran (CP)—British oil men prepared final plans today to get out of Iran in the next 18 days, leaving the Iranians to solve their own problems under a compromise in the oil nationalization dispute is reached.

AP Correspondent James M. Long reported from Abadan, seat of the oil industry which is Iran's financial backbone, that the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company planned a complete evacuation of British personnel from the oil fields unless negotiations were resumed.

Long said if the evacuation plan is carried out, within the next 18 days, wells in the Khuzistan oil field would be capped and the giant Abadan refinery—the world's largest—would shut down until the Iranian National Oil Commission named to run the nationalized industry could take over operations.

Most observers doubted that the British-Iranian negotiations would be resumed, or that the Iranians could operate their oil industry without the British field staff of more than 600 experts and technicians.

Iranian authorities today ordered Alex Mason, acting manager of the A.I.O.C.'s Abadan refinery, out of his house so Iranian officials could move in. British authorities said a letter from the Iranian officials said if Mason would work for Iran, he would be welcomed.

Find Body Of Quebec Youth Close To Home

ST. BEARD DE LACOLLE, Que., (CP)—The body of 16-year-old Remi Duquette was found today by searchers less than three quarters of a mile from his farm home. The youth had been missing since last Friday and was the object of a hunt by hundreds of searchers.

Police said the boy died of "natural causes." No further details of the death were available immediately.

The youth had been sought by some 200 searchers, including members of the U.S. army forces, farmers, provincial police and R.C.M.P., who fanned out through the fields of this Quebec-New York State border town during the last five days.

Duquette disappeared Friday afternoon after helping his father with chores on the 108-acre farm during the morning. His parents were unable to give police any reason for the disappearance.

SWEARING OFF FOR ALWAYS?

YORKTON, Sask. (CP)—A Yorkton man fell and broke his arm.

Because it was difficult to roll cigarettes, one handed he took to smoking a pipe. But while tamping down the tobacco in the lighted pipe his finger got stuck in the bowl.

Now he's wearing a bandage on the other hand, too.

Benchers Back Divorce Law Amendments

Members of the Victoria Bar Association today gave their full support to a resolution passed by the B.C. section, Canadian Bar Association in Vancouver, requesting Parliament to amend the present divorce laws.

Present grounds for divorce are out-of-date and should be amended to include desertion, cruelty and insanity, J. B. Clearhue, a senior bencher, said today. The divorce laws should be brought in line with those of England.

Alan Macfarlane, secretary of the Victoria Bar Association, said the divorce laws of Canada worked "hardships on many people and forced some to seek a remedy outside the law."

Weaker Finn Coalition To Stay In Power

HELSINKI, Finland (UP)—Finland's Communists gained ground in the country's two-day general election, but the present anti-Leftist government coalition appeared to have held enough strength to stay in power, unofficial returns showed today.

Three seats were still in doubt at noon (10 a.m., P.D.T.). The Communists won 42 and possibly 44 of the 200 parliamentary seats contested, compared with 38 won in 1948. They were still below their postwar peak of 49 seats, won in 1945.

The government coalition of Agrarians, Conservatives and the Swedish-speaking People's Party dropped at least seven seats. The Coalition has 95 and possibly 98 seats compared with 103 before.

The Socialists, who governed Finland from 1945 to 1948, held their own with 53 or 54 seats. There was no chance of a Socialist-Communist alliance against the government Coalition, however, and no prospects of a change in relations with next-door Russia.

Princess Elizabeth, Prince Philip Pay First Visit To Canada In Oct.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent announced today that Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip will visit Canada during October.

Mr. St. Laurent said they have accepted an invitation extended to them in London by External Affairs Minister Pearson, who currently is overseas.

They will travel Canada from coast to coast and are expected to visit most of the principal Canadian centres. Details will be made public later.

10-Year Jail Sentence For William Oatis

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—Associated Press correspondent William N. Oatis today was sentenced to 10 years in prison by a Communist court in Czechoslovakia for "spying out state secrets" and reporting "slanders and lies."

Half of Oatis' sentence can be remitted for good behavior, the chief magistrate of the five-man court said, and he will be expelled from Czechoslovakia after leaving prison.

The chief magistrate said the first western correspondent ever tried behind the Iron Curtain was spared from the death penalty because of his "admission of guilt and assistance in exposing the espionage activities of western diplomats and western news agencies."

Three Czech employees of the AP's Prague office, tried with Oatis, also were judged guilty and sentenced to prison terms ranging from 16 to 20 years.

(In Washington the State Department denounced the trial and conviction as a "judicious travesty of justice" aimed at intimidating American press services and the free press of the world.)

Special Issue Of The Times

Thursday night The Victoria Daily Times will publish a special supplement marking the move into its new quarters—a 12-page souvenir edition highlighted by special articles, pictures and messages.

Many readers will want to keep this supplement as a chronicle of the growth of Victoria, as reflected in the saga of The Times. Non-subscribers are advised to reserve their copy with dealers early Thursday.

Repulse Counter-Attack

Doughboys took the highest peak in the mountain chain Tuesday and held it against a Communist counter-attack last night. The Reds had been expected to fight as ferociously as ever to hold the remaining heights, but suddenly broke contact and pulled back north during the morning.

U.N. casualties in the four-day battle were said to be "moderate" despite the savage fighting. Sweat-soaked infantrymen had to dig the Reds out with bayonets and grenades when the enemy's deep rock and log bunkers proved impervious to shells and bombs.

Simultaneously with the Communist withdrawal below Pyongyang, Communist artillery and mortar fire decreased sharply along the remainder of the 100-mile battlefield.

Lt. Gen. James A. van Fleet, commander of U.N. ground forces, said that the Communists have been crippled more than they care to admit during the first year of the Korean fighting.

Magistrate Hall also requested a probationary report.

Still At Large

HORNE LAKE—R.C.M.P. reported today that two armed robbers who held up the Horne Lake Garage Monday at 5 p.m. stole $3 from the till, and escaped with an old car in heavy holiday traffic, are still at large.

One of the men held Leslie Englefield, proprietor, at gunpoint while he took the money. When they left Englefield had to borrow a neighbor's car and drive to a telephone to call police.

Indications Ridgway To Confirm Date

TOKYO (AP)—Communist commanders agreed tonight to preliminary cease-fire in Korea Sunday, the United Nations command announced.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, U.N. commander, had proposed such a meeting for tomorrow. His spokesman said he saw no reason why Sunday would not be acceptable.

There was no change in the previously agreed date—next Tuesday—to start actual armistice talks at the ancient Korean capital of Kaesong, near the 38th parallel.

As an unusual quiet covered the 100-mile Korean battlefield, the powerful U.S. Army radio on Okinawa picked up an acceptance message from the North Korean Pyongyang radio. It said:

"Commander of the United Nations forces:

"We have received your reply dated July 3. We agree to send three (3) liaison officers to Kaesong as you proposed. We will prepare for the preliminary conference in the Kaesong area if you agree to set the date on July eight (8)."

"Kim Il Sung, Supreme Commander of the Korean people's armed forces.

"Peng Teh-Huai, commander of the Chinese volunteers."

The broadcast was made at 7 p.m. (5 a.m. E.D.T.) in the Korean language.

NOT HEARD IN JAPAN

Reception was extremely poor. It was not heard by stations in Japan which have been listening for the latest message in the slow radio negotiations between opposing commanders.

Ridgway made the first move last Saturday. Kim and Peng accepted Sunday night, expressing a willingness to meet any time between July 10 and 15. Tuesday Ridgway agreed to start cease-fire talks on the 10th and proposed a preliminary session tomorrow.

Under Ridgway's proposal, each side would send three unarmed officers of rank no higher than colonel to Kaesong. They would then work out details for the important session between higher representatives of the commanders at which the actual end of the shooting would be arranged.

The war will continue until this session is held.

It is to deal purely with military questions—although this particular point has not been raised in the radio exchanges between U.N. and Red commanders.

MAJOR PROBLEM

Biggest problem appeared to be setting a demarcation line for the armistice, pending subsequent peace negotiations at a higher level. The Reds want the line drawn at the 38th parallel, old dividing line between North and South Korea.

It is to deal purely with military questions—although this particular point has not been raised in the radio exchanges between U.N. and Red commanders.

U.N. headquarters were all set for every stage of the military talks—even to polishing brass to a peace train now in Seoul, 35 miles southeast of Kaesong.

There was no indication when Ridgway would reply to the latest message from Kim and Peng.

KIM AT FRONT

The Chinese Reds' Peiping radio reported Kim visited the front today to congratulate "the Chinese people's volunteers" on "the heroic victories they have won."

U.S. front line dispatches said the Chinese completed withdrawing from mountains in the iron triangle which they lost this week at an estimated cost of 1,500 casualties.

Chinese movements behind the lines were watched constantly from the air.

American soldiers on patrol today celebrated the Fourth of July by hurling grenades and ducking Red sniper fire, but generally there wasn't much doing on the ground.

Right now the two things we need most is peace and rain. But kid you make a deal with a cloud? Or a Commie?

FACTS ABOUT FOOD

LONDON—On our return to England from Copenhagen, a news item in a London paper caught my eye. For it was about food, and it reminded me that I had not yet written anything about the food situation. Yet the meat problem, like the proverbial poor, is always with you in this country—and you notice it particularly after Denmark's bounteous tables.

The item in question announced that the average United States family is to get about 592 pounds of meat this year, according to Washington's Department of Agriculture officials—or 87 pounds more than the average family consumed each year from 1935-40.

SENSATIONAL!

TO MY SURPRISE, the item was only a small one, tucked away in the corner of the front page in question. I would have expected it to be headlined in large type for, to meat-starved Britons, such news is as sensational as "all the latest about the loves of Aly Khan." But perhaps the news editor realized how sensitive the British are about the relative positions of the "meat-haves" and the "meat-have-nots," so decided to play it down. Whatever the reason, however, that one little item certainly points up the difference between life on this island and life across the Atlantic—and that includes Canada.

SIX OUNCES WEEKLY

YOU DON'T have to be in England long to realize the irritating difficulties facing the housewife. Still on the ration list—and constantly going up in price—are meat, butter, oleomargarine, bacon and ham, sugar, cheese, eggs, lard, tea and candy. Even living in a hotel, as we have been for most of our stay—in order not to make housekeeping any harder for relatives—we have been conscious of the shortages.

An egg is obtainable at breakfast about once a week, and bacon about the same—but seldom together. Not that we have suffered, for fish is plentiful and excellent—and I have eaten so much of it that I fully expect to develop scales and fins before very long. And if, as alleged, it is brain food—well, there should be an appreciable improvement in my grey matter by the time I return home!

OFFAL AND AWFUL

WHEN IT COMES to roasts of beef, mutton, pork—they are rarer than museum pieces, for the meat ration is only five to six ounces weekly. To eke it out, housewives—and restaurants—have to resort to all sorts of queer substitutes, ranging from what is known as "offal" to the universal Spam.

Even in the West End hotels, it is quite customary to find the only meat dishes on the menu consist of reindeer, cows' and pigs' feet or knuckles, or stews, goulashes and patties whose basis is Spam or some such product, while rabbit is an occasional delicacy. Gulls' eggs were another protein dish new to me.

MEATLESS SAUSAGES

AND I KNOW it sounds heartless, but I had to laugh when I read that London's 28 boroughs were asked recently to protest over the meatlessness of sausages. An "anti-milk sausage" campaign was being led by Southwark, opposing the Ministry of Food's ruling that "milk powder counts as part of the meat in sausages."

After that, it wasn't surprising to read a display advertisement headed "Talking of Meat," and reading:

"Trotters would make a nice change and so would a 'Bath chop'; some Haslett sandwiches when you get back from the pictures, a nice bit of pork pie before the Saturday match and a tasty bit of black pudding in the evening. . . . If meat is going to remain tight, let's grow our own pigs."

CREAM ON SALE

HOWEVER, while meat, or the lack of it, still remains a headache, Britons have been rejoicing over the return of cream. For the first time generally since 1940, clotted cream, high-fat cream and coffee cream have been allowed on sale from May 15 for a few weeks.

And after their long period of fat shortages, it is not surprising that wherever two or more people are gathered together in restaurants you will see them all—men as well as women—indulging in cream with a gusto which would shake calico-conscious Canadians to the marrow.

Seek 500 Women As Navy Recruits

OTTAWA (CP)—Plans to recruit approximately 500 women into the Royal Canadian Navy Reserve this fall were announced today by defense headquarters.

In a statement, headquarters said the new women's Royal Canadian Navy (reserve) will be an integral part of the navy and not a separate service as was the wartime Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service.

The women will attend their local naval divisions for basic and trades training throughout the year.

The first four officers of the new reserve already are at naval headquarters preparing plans for

Soldier Faces Murder Charge

WAINWRIGHT, Alta. (CP)—Pte. Frederick J. Sabattis Tuesday was charged with murder and remanded until July 10 for preliminary hearing in the death of another soldier here Saturday night.

Sabattis is alleged to have shot and killed Pte. H. B. McEachran of Woodstock, N.B., with a .303 service rifle. An inquest Sunday revealed McEachran was struck in the chest with a single slug.

He died shortly after in hospital. Immediately after Tuesday's hearing, Sabattis was sent to Edmonton and lodged in police cells there until next Tuesday. Wainwright is about 150 miles east of Edmonton.

McEachran's body is already on its way to Woodstock for burial.

BRITAIN WILL KEEP DEFENSE EFFORT UP

Attlee Tells Churchill Offer To Co-operate
If Communist Lands Reduce; No Appeasement

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Clement Attlee said today Britain will push its defense plans until the Communist countries agree to reduce their armed forces.

"We have no intention of relaxing our efforts to strengthen our defenses," Attlee told a cheering House of Commons.

Attlee replied to Opposition Leader Winston Churchill in a debate on defense policy.

Churchill wanted to know if Attlee supported a statement by Defense Minister Emanuel Shinwell who said Sunday that Britain would be "only too willing to curtail rearmament" if the Communist countries showed the "slightest sign" of co-operation.

Attlee told the House the statement was taken out of context and that Britain had always sought the "co-operation of other countries to a policy of reducing armaments. Where these countries show genuine evidence of willingness to associate with us, we, for our part, will be very willing to consider the size of our defense forces."

"Meantime, we have no intention of relaxing our efforts to strengthen our defenses."

Attlee said "we want strength but we also want peace."

Some European governments had speculated that Britain's financial situation might lead to a lag in defense production if fighting stopped in Korea.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Gaitskell stressed the financial problem in reporting that the gold and dollar surplus of the sterling area was $54,000,000 at the end of June, compared with $360,000,000 at the end of March and $398,000,000 in December, 1950.

Gaitskell said the decline was due to higher prices for raw materials and a drop in exports from most of the sterling area.

"It is quite likely that these less favorable influences will continue during the next few months," he warned.

WeatherShip Returns To Home Harbor

Another six weeks of duty at lonely Station Peter, 900 miles west of Victoria, ended this week at Esquimalt when Capt. James Sleight brought the weather ship, St. Catherine's back into her home port.

The alternating vessel, Stone- town, has already taken up her position at the Pacific outpost. A 24-hour break in the usual monotony of weather ship duty was provided for the crew during their latest visit, when the St. Catherine's was ordered to the assistance of a large U.S. fishing vessel reported in distress during heavy weather off Queen Charlotte Sound. Stricken with engine trouble, the 165-foot craft, with 26 aboard, was taking the seas high over her stern. However, engine repairs allowed the ship to proceed at 10 knots toward Kodiak, Alaska, her original destination, and St. Catherine's was ordered back to her station.

First thoughts of the crew on arrival here were for their mail, pay cheques, and a spell of leave until July 16.

One Victorian Among Ten To Finish Course

Ten men of the Royal Canadian Navy have graduated from the second R.C.N. preparatory school to be held at H.M.C.S. Naden. Included is one Victorian resident, Chief Petty Officer Fred A. Jones.

Each man is now qualified educationally for advancement to commissioned officer, but some are young enough to take advantage of other channels of advancement open to them in the navy.

The class was enrolled late in October 1950, and settled down in earnest to acquire the academic credits that would fit them for commissioned rank. Some are also eligible, academically, for entrance to university or the Canadian Services College, depending on age, rating and special training.

The preparatory school course consisted of senior matriculation, mathematics (algebra, geometry and trigonometry), general physics, chemistry, English and French. It is on a par with the educational requirements at Royal Roads and Royal Military College, Kingston, Ont.

The school was organized by the senior schoolmasters in the Pacific Command two years ago, and is designed to "provide an avenue of advancement for every ambitious sailor, regardless of rating."

Of the 10 graduates, five passed with honors. They were: P.O. John D. O'Neill of Montreal, 83.8 per cent; O.S. J. Haslett, North Vancouver, 81.3 per cent; L.S. Andrew J. Nichol, Acton, Ont., 79 per cent; O.S. John D. Buchan, Vancouver, 76.6 per cent, and O.S. John V. Graham, Toronto, 75 per cent.

The other graduates are CPO. Jones, P.O. Ralph A. Mason, Edmonton; P.O. Norman B. O'Neill, St. John, N.B.; P.O. Bruce G. Richards, Edmonton, and L.S. Douglas Jobson, Oya, B.C.

Brother Twelve's Former Trawler Will Fish Tuna

The only fishing vessel from Victoria's large fishing fleet to sail this month for the far-off tuna fishing grounds in Mexican waters is the sleek white-hulled trawler Lady Royal, once owned by Brother Twelve, leader of a fantastic religious cult which operated in the De Courcy Island group near Nanaimo.

The graceful trawler, rigged for tuna and jointly skippered by Jack Noble and his wife, Maria, of Victoria, left at the beginning of the week on its long journey to Mexico. There they hope to catch 25 to 30 tons of fish, which would bring them about $7,500.

The ship was once the flagship of a fleet maintained by Edward Arthur Wilson, better known here as Brother Twelve, who established a religious sect. Brother Twelve first came to British Columbia in 1901 and worked for a time in Victoria as a clerk. He soon gave up his obscure job in the city, left for Italy, where he studied oriental magic and returned to the coast to establish his religious cult.

His fame as a prophet soon became widespread and thousands of wealthy Americans were attracted to his religious sect. In a short time Brother Twelve was cashing in off a business which brought him over $1,000 a week in contributions.

Finally, some of his followers, who included two millionaire women, discovered that the religious sect was just a hoax. They complained to police, but the crafty Brother Twelve managed to make his escape on the high seas on the powerful ocean-going tug Kheunaten, named for an Egyptian god.

Before leaving Brother Twelve sank the Lady Royal near Nanaimo and made the strange prediction that whoever succeeded in raising the vessel would find Spanish gold. This may have been his last hoax, for after considerable money was spent in raising the boat (weighed down with great cement blocks) not a coin was found aboard.

The Lady Royal finally passed on into the hands of Jack Noble. Though no money was found aboard the vessel, fishermen along Victoria's waterfront believe that the prophet's fantastic prediction may yet come true. Who knows, the Nobles may yet make a tuna catch off the coast of Mexico which will bring them a small fortune equal in weight to Spanish gold!

Unconfirmed reports here are that the brigade will be posted to Germany to finish off its training probably late this year or early next.

The chief of staff will be reporting to Defense Minister Claxton within the next day or so and going into the whole broad picture of supply, areas for training and other matters. The infantry battalions of the brigade are in preliminary training at Valcartier, Que., now, while other arms are in training elsewhere. Latest figures showed that more than 8,000 men have enlisted in the 27th. The target is 12,000 to 13,000.

Meanwhile cease-fire preliminaries in Korea are being watched with interest here partly because of their potential effect on the thousands of Canadian soldiers and sailors engaged in the war. However, defense officials say it is too early to start talking about when the 25th Brigade or the navy's three destroyers will come home or the R.C.A.F.'s 426 transport squadron be taken off the trans-Pacific airlift.

Fire At Campbell River Not Affecting Fishing

CAMPBELL RIVER — Resort owners here complained bitterly today of adverse publicity resulting from the forest fire in that area.

A spokesman said, "Newspaper reports notwithstanding, there are no road blocks, there is no conscription of visitors for fire fighting duties, and no discomfort from smoke. The skies are blue and the sun shines. The fire is over 25 miles away—a cloud on the horizon."

In support of their claim that fishing is not suffering, the resort men produced a picture of the first tye salmon of the season, a 34-pounder landed by teenager Lorraine Churchill of Los Angeles. She was assisted in landing the big fish by her father, Eugene Churchill.

The two had been out only 20 minutes when the tye struck.

Freight Rate Boost Scored By Manitoba

WINNIPEG (CP)—Premier D. L. Campbell of Manitoba today said Canadian railways could cover wage increases and other costs without "increasing the burden upon the freight rate payers of Canada at this time."

He was commenting on the decision of the Board of Transport Commissioners to allow the railways a freight rate increase of 12 per cent.

Evidence submitted at the freight rate hearing last month indicated there was "no urgency or serious need for relief" for railways at present, the premier said.

The railways, with their heavier traffic, additional earnings and through efficient management could meet increased agency costs without the boost, Mr. Campbell said.

The freight "naturally" Manitoba Government urged that the railways be relieved of the burden of the freight rate increase.

Pearson Warns Korean Peace Still Problem

OSLO (Reuters)—Canada's external affairs minister, L. B. Pearson, warned today against "too-careless optimism" over the chances of peace in Korea.

At a press conference, Pearson stressed that if fighting is stopped in Korea, there still is the political side of the problem and the problem of a peaceful solution of the whole Far Eastern problem.

Pearson also warned democratic countries against slackening their defense work.

"It would be a great mistake if we relaxed our efforts just because we have worked out a solution in the Korea problem," he said.

Pearson said his visit to Norway is unofficial, but he has talked with Norwegian officials, including Foreign Minister Halvard Lange and Defense Minister Jens Hauge.

The Forgotten Consumer

IN ITS STRUGGLE TO DEFLATE THE national economy the federal government at last is receiving strong support from those forgotten men and women, the Canadian consumers.

In a brief filed with Mr. St. Laurent the Canadian Association of Consumers, with branches throughout the country, wisely urges the government to stand firm on its deflationary policy, even if it hurts in spots. The association notes that the government's program of monetary deflation is having the desired result of "curtailing public spending." Partly this is due, the association says, to curbs on installment buying. Though the government is under some pressure to relax its restrictions, the association urges it to reject these demands.

The consumers evidently know that while the government is making it more difficult for them to buy some kinds of semi-durable and non-essential goods on credit, this, among other things, is necessary if the public is to be saved from a further spiral of inflation.

When the present spiral began about a year ago as a result of the Korean war many consumers demanded the easy and unworkable cure of government price controls. It is clear from the brief of the consumers' association that it has thought its way through this problem and sees that the real trouble is an excess of public purchasing power over the available supply of goods. It is therefore backing the government's fundamental fiscal remedies which include, besides installment buying curbs, a tightening of bank credit, high taxes and an increased interest rate.

A government under strong pressure to abandon these remedies before the cure has properly begun, doubtless will welcome the backing of the people whom it is trying to save from still higher prices. Usually governments hear from well-organized minorities but the consumers, with little organization so far, represent the whole people since everybody is a consumer. The government, it is to be hoped, will hear the consumer's voice above the clamor of the pressure groups.

Having supported the government's deflationary policy, the consumers' association goes on to attack the existing methods of "price maintenance" by which manufacturers set the retail price of their goods. This practice, except where retailers agree to it, has been declared illegal in the United States but, as the consumers say, is still legal in Canada. They observe, however, that one royal commission has condemned this system as damaging to the consumer and another commission is studying the existing law and will report on it in the autumn. The government, the consumers say, should act promptly on the issue that is thus raised.

By the time Parliament meets again in the fall the government should be in a firmer position to resist the demands of those who would destroy the deflationary policy by piecemeal concessions to various industries. The policy, as Mr. Abbott says and as the consumers association agrees, is now showing results in more stable prices. The individual protests against it are the best proof that it is working. It deserves and now is getting the support of the consumers whom it is designed to rescue.

Loose Ends

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

THE OWNER of a summer camp doubtless is the least understood and most slandered of all Canadians. This is no matter. He expects nothing else and will be happy if the slanderers will only leave him alone.

Hutchison

In self-defense for their own idle and useless lives, the visitors to summer camps have constructed an outrageous legend. They picture the camp owner as an unnatural monster who lures city people into the woods and there sets them to work cutting firewood, painting porches and mending boats.

After long and bitter experience the camper can afford to smile at this caricature but the smile is a little sad. For no camper, so far as I have discovered in half a century of personal investigation, has yet got any work out of anybody but himself and by now there is not much left in him either. What little energy remains in his broken body must be safeguarded, rationed and preserved from interruption if he and the camp are to survive.

THE WEEK-END guest, therefore, is to be welcomed so long as he refuses to work, so long as he stays out with the owner's way and lets him get on with his solitary, mysterious and worthless labors. There are well-known and proved methods of keeping guests away altogether. If your beds are hard enough, if the mosquitoes will co-operate, if you keep your liquor safely locked up where you can consume it secretly and alone, if the food is bad, the lamps unworkable and the roof leaky, it is gratifying to see how few visitors you will have.

A PERSISTENT fellow may have to be repelled by a few hours on a cross-cut saw but such extreme measures are not often necessary. I keep by me a dull axe (my keen, double-bladed blade safely secreted against amateurs who would ruin it) not to hit the visitor on the head, though it is sometimes a temptation, but as a kind of discreet hint to my guests. They seldom come a second time. I also remove all lively reading matter so that visitors must read themselves to sleep with a useful book of the Privy Council's decisions on drainage cases, and in an emergency I put a fresh coat of paint on the chairs and on other places where the stranger must sit down. After ruining their new trousers, or ringing their flesh with vivid colors, they usually renounce country life.

THESE are simple cases, quickly cured by obvious remedies. The camper's real problem is the honest guest who really wants to do his share of the work. For him, if he is honest and strong enough, there is no known cure. You may discourage him a little by forcing him to ride on a saw handle all day, you may get a cord of wood out of him now and then, but the cost is too great, for you are compelled to be with him, you lose your solitude, you are forced against all your plans and instincts to be a human being. No camper wants to be a human being or he would remain in town with his fellow men. His whole objective is to escape from them. The horror of watching a human on the other end of a saw, being tied to him by a band of steel, perhaps of listening to his conversation and actually receiving news of the world—that is too much and not to be borne.

IN THE interests of national unity, as a supplement to the Massey Report (which is strangely silent on this essential aspect of Canadian culture) I am compiling and will publish posthumously, at my own expense, a book of rules for the camp guest.

The first rule is that he should remain in the city but as this is a vain hope, the second rule provides that, on arriving in camp, he shall abandon the hollow pretence of labor. By the third rule he will announce right away that he has no intention of working and proposes to spend the week-end in a hammock with a tall drink, a detective story and a blonde.

FOURTHLY, and most important, the perfect guest will offer no words of sympathy to the camper when he returns from his tasks late at night, covered with paint, resin and blisters and asks only the right to sink into his bed. He wants no sympathy, no comment, no thanks and, above all, no conversation. And by the final rule no guest shall be allowed into the camp if he brings so much as one word of news from the city, one observation on politics, one sentence about the atomic bomb. The camper has serious problems and cannot afford to be distracted by these irrelevances.

IN SHORT, come to my camp, eat my food, even drink my beer and read my book on drainage cases and you will be welcome. But not a word out of you if you intend to come again. Camp life is a noble agony that a man must endure alone.

Correction In Order

Montreal Star

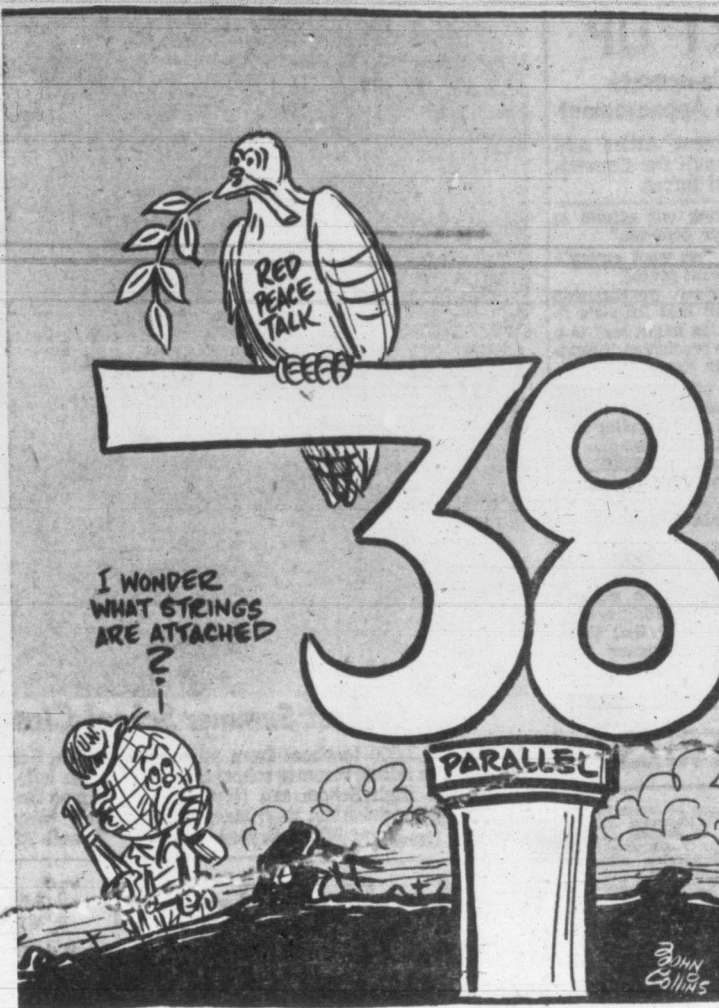

General MacArthur, in his testimony to the U.S. Senate stirred the latest anti-British fires of America by his statement that the United Kingdom was shipping strategic materials to China. He mentioned specifically petroleum and his remarks won due headline space in the American press.

Sir Hartley Shawcross, the new President of the Board of Trade, pointed out that, in the report of exports on which General MacArthur based his claim, the item "Petroleum" did indeed occur. What the General in his haste forgot to notice was that, after it, appeared the word "NIL."

It is always hard to catch up with a false impression once it has been given. It may be hoped that the press and radio which published the erroneous statement all made due correction. It would have been better if General MacArthur himself had issued a statement making clear his own mistake.

The General's reputation would not suffer by such an action. He would instead increase his stature. To leave matters as they are will only heighten the impression already given by him that, when he spoke of America "going it alone," he did mean that nobody else could or would give any very effective help anywhere in the world.

As Our Readers See It

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

In a recent issue of the Times I read that a man was fined $50 for having a bear confined by a chain.

Well done, Saanich! The article did not enlighten us as to what became of the poor creature.

How much more cruel it is to have wild animals brought to our fair city to perform before hundreds of thoughtless people! These wretched, unfortunate animals were trained in most cruel ways and are confined in very small quarters.

What an opportunity to fill the city coffers and also show the disapproval of all decent and fair-minded people to mete out the same treatment to certain visiting animal shows.

IN ALL HIS GLORY

Replying to "Humanity" of June 27, I can find nothing in my previous contribution that implies or suggests that wisdom did not exist before the days of Solomon. It must be obvious to most people that evil always claims to be good—that is the nature of evil—to deceive mankind.

We do not have to look very far to see examples of this deception. To discern evil in its various guises constitutes wisdom. The basis of this discernment must be a knowledge of what is good.

Solomon was probably the busiest of men in his time, and one of his tasks was the construction of the Temple in Jerusalem after orders from his father, King David. Solomon's great wealth which resulted from his extensive trading leads one who is unprejudiced to believe that in spite of the number of women employed in his household, and called "wives," his great constructive activities, and his writings, merit the assumption that he was not addicted to dissipation.

His final downfall is recorded as being due to the influence of foreign wives, who worshipped gods other than the God of Israel.

REALIST.

HUMMINGBIRDS

The hummingbird controversy is quite interesting. There are at least four species which are summer residents of this part of B.C., Rufous, Allen's, Calliope and Black-chinned. The ruby-throated does not, according to the books, get farther west in Canada than the Alberta foothills. The writer has never seen the Black-chinned, but it is listed in Reed's "Western Bird Guide," and other authorities.

According to records kept since 1944 the hummers have arrived from April 1 to April 9, and these observations have been made from Salt Spring Island, Duncan and Sidney, respectively. Much earlier arrivals have been reported, however, by other observers. As is generally known the male leaves shortly after the mating season, but in 1944, for some strange reason, several males remained around our premises on Salt Spring Island till July 4.

SEWAGE DISPOSAL

The fact that sewage has made swimming unsafe at Ross Bay is another sad reflection on our age.

Every day sewage—or indirectly our top soil—is being dumped irretrievably into the bottom of our ocean.

How much each year do we lose in expensive dredging operations and polluted waters by our shortsightedness?

A proper sewage conversion system would cause initial expense, but future reward—one can buy here a very excellent fertilizer made from Chicago-New York sewage. We spend ungrudgingly for schools, roads and health services. But let us consider whether in the future we can support the population on our depreciated lands, and can we maintain health or food grown on depleted soil.

This is one bit of conservation we as taxpayers and voters can demand—and should demand.

From Whatshan, New Power In B.C.

(First of a series on the B.C. Power Commission's new Whatshan development.)

By ART STOTT

ON the bus out of Vernon, passengers changed the Tennessee Waltz to the Monashee Waltz. The Monashees is a tortuous pass that lets east-bound traffic through the mountains from the north Okanagan into Lower Arrow Lake. It comes out at the settlement of Needles, a mile or two from the Whatshan power plant, latest addition to the B.C. Power Commission's system. The only similarity between the pass and the dance step is the counting—one-two-three-turn, one-two-three-turn, and frequently you drop the one-two-three as you keep turning.

It's the kind of road, one driver noted, that would break a snake's back. But the scenery is magnificent.

Climbing up out of the rolling Okanagan country from Vernon and passing through Lumby, the dirt road moves into the mountains. Vegetation grows greener. Poplars and scrub pine give way to the bigger conifers. A jackrabbit scampers from the road, and deer leap away into the woods. Big yellow daisies, like brown-eyed susans, grow beside blue lupins, and small streams cascade down the hillside, crossing under the road and disappearing into gullies that grow to canyons as the road twists upward.

As is the pattern with power sites wilderness scenery is everywhere at Whatshan. The plant nestles at the foot of a hill sloping up from the green-blue water which is the Columbia River where it widens into the Lower Arrow Lake named after the arrowhead foreland on its sides. Across the water another mountain slopes precipitately skyward, and behind it snow lies on a nearby peak.

TUNNEL THROUGH MOUNTAIN Water comes to the penstock, with its 710-foot drop, through a tunnel bored through two and one-half miles of granite mountain. During its boring crews struck faulty rock, escaped from the sink that occurred when the rock came down, and tunneled around it.

To reach the reservoir, cars drive back toward Needles and then start up another dirt road that rivals the Monashee in kinks. They come, eventually, to a three-link chain of lakes high in the hills. The margins of the lakes have been cleared, prior to flooding, and the shoreline is neat, though beaches are not apparent from the tunnel intake. One resort owner is moving grudgingly up the hill as the water rises.

To get the greatest head possible from the 710-foot drop in the penstock, the power plant itself goes down instead of up, with generators in the first basement and turbines below them. The lower floors are encased in waterproof protective work, built against floods when the Columbia starts to pour excess water into the Arrow Lakes.

Currently the plant can produce 30,000 electrical horsepower, and has been built to permit double that capacity when demand makes additions economically feasible.

In its present condition the $55-million development replaces three other plants at Shuswap Falls, Barriere and Kamloops, with double their combined capacities. It is roughly one-third as big as the John Hart power station at Campbell River.

Immediately adjacent to the plant are small communities only. Some of them will receive power. Others will be served when population and new industry warrant the expenditure.

Chief beneficiaries of the scheme are Vernon, with its population of 11,000, approximately 70 miles west of Whatshan; Kamloops, with 10,000 people, another 75 miles further west, and the North Okanagan valley, where 3,000 rural consumers are hooked in. Power surges to them from Whatshan over cables threaded perilously through the Monashee Pass and westward. They were strung by pole and line crews working under hockey player Dave Mackay, and give the ordinary sightseer vertigo just from looking at them.

A Mockery Of Justice

THE TRIAL OF WILLIAM OATIS, head of the Associated Press bureau in Prague, appears to be following the set pattern of all such cases behind the iron curtain. The prisoner and witnesses have the same "pale, strained" look. The confessions are delivered in the same seemingly memorized manner. The admissions of espionage and anti-government activities have the usual highly improbable flavor. In Prague today is being repeated the farce of the Vogeler trial in Budapest—of scores of trials before scores of Communist judges in the Russian satellite lands.

Party followers and fellow travelers on this continent should not fail to notice the circumstances attending the so-called trial. They should observe that the prisoner has been kept incommunicado since his arrest on April 23. He has been allowed no messages to or from the American consul, his relatives or friends. No one but his accusers has been permitted to see him. His counsel is a Czech, appointed by the Czech government.

The whole wretched falsity of the trial is shown up nowhere better than in Oatis' reported statement in court. He admitted that his news agency, the Associated Press, serves newspapers in the west which are eager for stories against Communism. "I am sorry I have allowed myself to be used in this way," he told the judges. If Oatis wished to send a concealed message to the world that he is innocent and that his confessions mean nothing, he could have chosen no better way. No one reading that expression of contrition, coming from an American newspaperman, could concede any authenticity to the rest of the proceedings.

No Joke In A Call For Help

ON THE WATER, WHERE ACCIDENTS can happen so suddenly no precautions can guard adequately against them, it is, or should be, an unwritten law to call for help only when it is needed. Such a call must produce an immediate response if it is to be effective. At no time should it become the shouted form of a practical joke.

In spite of this generally understood rule, Sgt. Eric Elwell of Saanich police has found it necessary to publish a stern warning to young people against calling for help when it is not required. He cites the case of two men who rowed across Elk Lake at top speed the other day in response to shouts, only to find no one about. It will not be a source of wonder if the same two men think twice before they take a boat out when they hear similar cries in future.

At the best of times, crying wolf is a poor, cheap and stupid form of practical joking. On the water it can prove fatal. Around the coast and at the lakes it should not be countenanced. Children should be raised to understand that they should call for assistance only when they need help. If they do not learn that lesson they may dull adult ears to cries for aid that are genuine and thus indirectly be responsible for drownings.

They Forgot To Shoot

THE OLD CRY—"IF ONLY I'D HAD a camera with me"—which usually accompanies the verbal recounting of once-in-a-lifetime adventures, has been shown up for what it is: an oratorical lament rather than a lost opportunity. For the truth seems to be that if only you'd had a camera with you you'd probably have done nothing—you'd have stared and stared and forgotten to click the shutter.

Off June the other day, it seems that two fishermen found their skiff hoisted high out of the water after one of them had hooked a salmon. A surfacing whale had come up under their keel and given them a lift. For five amazing seconds they balanced, with the help of an oar shoved against a dorsal fin, living evidence—if suitably backed up with pictorial proof—of an occurrence that should thrill their progeny into the third or fourth generation.

A few yards away, 10 persons with cameras stood around the deck of a cabin cruiser. Not a lens was focused, not a sighting was taken, not a shutter was clicked. It was the opportunity of a lifetime to authenticate a fish story to end all fish stories. And nothing happened. "If only I'd had a camera with me," Bah!

Under Our Roof

By JOHN RHODES STURDY

DEAR SIR, (Hamish wrote from Banff) will you please send the necessary funds for the Colonel and me to get out of these Rocky Mountains.

(I laughed when I read this to my wife. She calls it my "Richard Widmark" laugh, and I only use it on very rare occasions because of the terrifying effect it has on dogs and small children. But the idea of me sending money to Hamish and Col. S. Skeffington-Smatts (Ret.) for them to come out and live with us on the island, produced it now in all its horrible force.)

At present (Hamish continued) the Colonel and I are living in a teepee. A teepee is a tent with a hole in the top, and I guess would be quite comfortable under ordinary circumstances, but this one isn't on account of the fact that it keeps slipping off the glacier.

The glacier belongs to the Colonel, and is quite a nice one. If you like glaciers, I can't say I do, I would much rather be living in my pup-tent on your island, so please send the money by return mail.

Of course you know that we were supposed to have the bridal suite in the hotel here, on account of the Colonel and I won a second-honour moon trip on a radio program Back East. Well, we did have it until the Colonel bought the glacier and we moved.

It happened on our second day when the Colonel and I were basking in the hot springs they have here. There was a big party of American tourists there, and when they left a man walked over to us and said: "Nuts about ice."

"I beg your pardon, sir?" asked the Colonel.

The man took off a ten-gallon hat and fanned himself. "Americans," he said. "Crazy about ice. Use ice in everything. Can't live without it. There's a fortune waiting for a smart man in these hills."

"Is that so?" said the Colonel, his eyes lighting up. "How would that be, sir?"

The man leaned forward confidentially. "Glacier ice," he whispered. "Selling glacier ice to American tourists. I tell you, pardner, it's an untapped gold mine. You offer a tourist a piece of genuine, hundred per cent glacier ice, and he'll pay any price for it, just to show to the folks at home."

"Why don't they just go and chop off a piece, if they want it?" asked the Colonel.

The man shook his head. "Ice rights," he said. "You've heard of water rights and land rights—well, up here, in this country you can't just walk over and take a hunk of glacier. You've got to own the ice rights."

Well, it appeared that our new friend was leaving the country or he would be going into the business himself. He told us that the Columbia Icefields, which were a big proposition, were tied up by the government, but he happened to have the ice rights for a fairly modest glacier near Banff and...

So the Colonel bought the glacier from him, using all his own money, and mine, too, and it all turned out very badly, because we haven't been able to interest any American tourists in buying our ice. One prospect was interested until he asked us: "How'm I going to get it back to the folks at home without it melting?" and not even the Colonel could answer that one. The man who sold him the glacier has disappeared, and it seems that the real estate market on glaciers is bad right now, so—please send the money, Hamish.

"You'll have to send it," my wife said. "You can't be that cruel."

I guess not. So my wife checked up on her bank account and sent a money-order yesterday. And I do feel much better about it, now.

'Gulf Islands' Favored Name

Telephone subscribers served by the B.C. Telephone Company's Mayne Island exchange have voted overwhelmingly in favor of changing the name to "Gulf Islands."

Norman G. Cull

The new name—"Gulf Islands"—will come into use on July 1. Following requests made by the Gulf Islands Improvement Bureau for a change in the name of the exchange, the telephone company asked subscribers to vote on the matter. Of 154 ballots mailed, 133 were returned, and of this total 100 favored the name "Gulf Islands" over the existing exchange name.

The mimosa is known as the "sensitive plant." If the pot is gently shaken, or if the leaves are lightly touched, the leaves immediately bend downwards as if the plant were dying.

HOME GARDEN

by Hilda Beasly

While revelling in the midst of summer bloom, we must think and work for the display of flowers next spring.

The home gardener does not need to lift and divide all the bulbous and rhizomatous plants each year. However, after two flowering seasons we are often asked why daffodils, tulips or iris give less bloom.

Lifting the plants will give the answer. Where one large narcissus bulb was planted it will have split into possibly three new "slabs." These are each ready to form "rounds" and produce flowers, but must be planted separately to have space and food for development.

When digging narcissi, inspect each bulb for bulb fly, eelworm and nematode damage. Soft, evil-smelling bulbs have the bulb fly grub inside; bulbs without good, long white roots, and those with no basal plates, have fallen prey to eelworm or nematode.

These bulbs should be burned (not thrown away), and new bulbs should not be planted in the same area for three to five years.

The same inspection should be applied to tulips which were dug during June. The "feel" of a healthy bulb is soon recognized; soft bulbs and those having marked or chalky outer scales, should be burned. Dutch iris, crocus, muscari and all other bulbous subjects require the same careful checking.

The bearded iris grow from rhizomes (ry-zohms) and must be divided every third year, for the plants increase rapidly, become crowded and fail to flower. Dig the clumps and cut off these rhizomes having a fan of leaves, discarding those without. Trim the leaves to a length of six to eight inches, and the long roots to about four inches. Re-plant each rhizome on a mound of earth with the roots straight down each side. Barely cover with earth, for the iris prefers to be "like a duck in water." The light covering will be washed off when watered, leaving the rhizome exposed to the sun for ripening.

New Police Office

City Council late Tuesday approved plans for a new $11,000 detective office above the police station garage, and $350 expenditure on repairs and alterations for the police photographic room. The city purchasing agent was instructed to obtain the necessary materials.

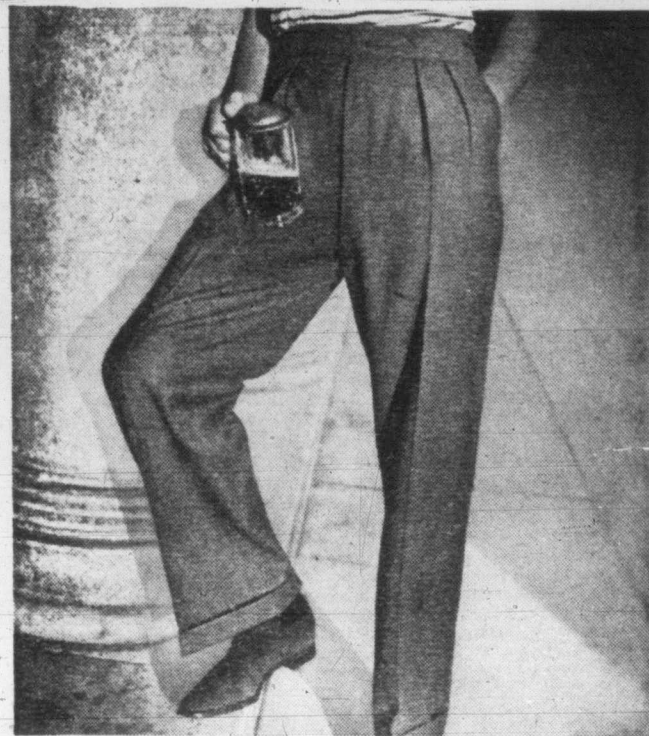

City Council also heard a plea for closer co-operation between the council and board of police commissioners by Ald. Millard H. Mooney.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor.

Spectators who followed the threesome of Percy Clogg, Walt McElroy and Bob Fleming in the British Columbia Closed golf championships at Uplands over the week-end may have been watching the three men who with Bill Mahoney will make up this province's Willingdon Cup team this summer.

At least McElroy is certain of a berth as he has had the necessary experience, having competed in the Canadian tourney on two previous occasions. Fleming can't be overlooked either, despite B.C. golf secretary Joe H. Wat's proclamation that two berths are still wide open with any one of half a dozen top golfers capable of moving in. All Fleming has done this year in four major tournaments is win two—the Victoria City and Vancouver Island match play, and place second in the B.C. Amateur and B.C. Closed. You can't do much better. As we see it only one berth is open at the moment.

It should be noted also that four of the top six finishers in the B.C. meet were Victorians. An interested spectator at the tourney was Jim Hogan, the chap who beat McElroy in the quarter finals of the Canadian Amateur in 1946.

The Athletics have been making their own news lately but they could still use one more starting pitcher. And don't be surprised if manager Bob Sturgeon gives young John Brkich a starting assignment on the road. The left-hander might just come through at that, the way the A's are going.

Word from Vancouver is that Porky Levine is no longer at the St. Regis Hotel. It is reported that Porky has quit clerking for a salesman's job which will see him on the road most of the time. Danny Sprout, who will be remembered as a Portland Eagle defenceman, has sold out his business in Campbell River and hence forth will operate his tavern in Seattle in the off season.

As An Added Incentive

Phillip Chan of the Panama Cafe and an ardent lacrosse fan has made an offer that should keep the Shamrocks on their toes. Chan will give each Rock who scores five goals in any one game a cheque for $5. He will also give $250 to the club for each shutout period.

Shades of the World Series of 1950—our final gas bill from Valparaiso, Indiana, finally arrived in town nine months later. Capt. Foster of the publicity bureau, reports a girls' softball league in Port Angeles is looking for exhibition games.

Writing in the San Francisco Chronicle outdoor expert Tod Powell strikes a well-aimed gaff at Campbell River and the fishing guides up yonder. Says Tod:

"Several years ago the so-called 'guides' who row boats for anglers charged $6 a day for a few hours of simple rowing. Then it was upped to $8, $10, $12 and $14 for the same job and now the Canadian boys demand that the fish YOU catch belong to them."

"If you want your fish the next day to send home or have a picture made you pay the market price per pound for YOUR fish. Years ago we gave the fish to the boatmen, but now they demand the fish and make no bones about it. Now we go to other spots in Canada which are still unspoiled." What say, Campbell River?

Victoria youngsters with a baseball future in mind might be interested to learn that the St. Louis Browns will hold an instructional school at Penticton, July 26-28. Age limit is 17-23 with no admission charge or fees of any kind.

Barrett Off The Payroll

Dick Barrett, who was paid for managing and pitching for the A's, doing little of the latter, is eagerly looking forward to his next pay day. He had a year's contract, you know. Scheduled to leave town last night, Dick wouldn't say which club, but he is reported clerking with a Coast League team and two W.L. units. "Just say I'll be back," said Dick, "and maybe I can show some of these fellows, who said I couldn't pitch, a thing or two." Barrett is off the A's payroll as of last week, but future developments may prove interesting, though neither the A's nor Barrett will say anything official on the subject.

If Barrett does contest the case—if there is a case to contest—it will probably be unique in the fact that it may set a pattern in baseball to come. Owners will be a little more wary in signing contracts of the nature Barrett reputedly had. It means in short that a manager could sign up for a year and rest on that physical effort the rest of that year. This hardly seems fair to the ball club concerned, would then have no recourse no matter what the manager didn't do. Incidentally Dick worked out with Yakima, Monday.

A Note For Mr. Ferguson

For what it's worth we'll pass on what fans think of the Shamrocks. They pay to think that coach Arnold Ferguson should leave Whitey Severson and Archie Browning on the same line, and we concur. By the way, Jim McKeachie is tub thumping for the Rocks once more, not that they need it, but it takes some of the strain off manager Ralph Baker. Red McMillan reportedly played his finest game of the year at Nanaimo, Saturday.

Then there was the referee who using diplomacy to the highest degree stopped Norm Baker's fist aspirations with the remark: "You're the winner Norm; you've got in three good punches already." It wasn't until Norm got to the penalty bench that he realized he had only landed one blow.

There Are Easier Ways To Make A Living

Loosening up for the 12th annual Gyro hole-in-one tourney, Bob Fleming prepares to shoot from committee secretary Bill Hudson's forehead. Denis Humphries, chairman of the tournament committee, does not seem confident at all in the young golfer's ability to chip out of the rough on Hudson's eyebrows. The tournament opens at Central High School tonight at 7 and continues till Saturday. Among the valuable prizes is a refrigerator. All proceeds will be turned over to Gyro charities.

Upstart Yanks Steal Net Glory

WIMBLEDON, Eng. (UP)—A pair of American giant killers turned their fire on one another today as Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., and Dick Savitt of Orange, N.J., clashed in the semifinals of the Wimbledon tennis tournament.

Both were making surprise appearances.

Chunky young Flam seemed doomed to certain defeat when he played top-seeded Frank Sedgman of Australia in the quarter-finals, yet he licked the Aussie Monday following a slow start, 2-6, 1-6, 6-4, 6-4, 7-5. It was just as unlikely that Savitt would be playing today, for he met U.S. champion Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., in the first round.

But he, too, was upset-hungry and gobbled up Larsen 6-1, 6-4, 6-4.

Today they fought it out in the regal centre court for the right to meet the winner of the semifinal between Ken McGregor of Australia and Eric Sturgess of South Africa. The title match will be played Friday.

The Yanks hoped, of course, that Sturgess would be the foe in the finals. But McGregor was the favorite over the South African.

There was no fear that an American won't win the women's championship. For the fourth straight year, the distasteful semifinals tomorrow will be an All-American competition. Beverly Baker of Santa Monica, Calif., will play Doris Hart of Jacksonville, Fla., in one of the matches.

Top-seeded Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., faces Shirley Fry of Akron, Q., in the other.

Miss Baker bounced off U.S. champion Margaret Dupont of Wilmington, Del., in a surprise yesterday, 6-1, 4-6, 6-3. Miss Brough overcame her ailing elbow to down Kay Tuckey of England, 5-7, 6-1, 6-3.

Miss Hart had the help of Nancy Chaffee's centre court jitters as she whipped the Ventura, Calif., lass, 6-3, 6-3. And Miss Fry survived a baseline duel to down Jean Walker-Smith of England, 8-6, 6-4.

The women's finals are Saturday.

BROWNIE FANS LOOK TO VEECK TO END SUFFERING

ST. LOUIS (UP)—Long-suffering fans of the St. Louis Browns looked hopefully today to Bill Veeck, baseball impresario and new Brownie owner, to provide the cash, savvy and shenanigans that will breathe new life into the floundering club.

Veeck, who used showmanship and front office generalship to turn first Milwaukee and then Cleveland into winners both on the field and at the box-office, got his chance to try the same tactics here when the last barrier to his ownership of the Browns was removed yesterday.

Herbert Wialke, a member of the Browns' present board of directors, deposited $572 shares for purchase by Veeck and his associates at the $7-per-share option price. Then another large stockholder, who remained anonymous, turned in 7,800 shares to make Veeck's purchase of the club from Bill and Charlie DeWitt a certainty.

Rocks Share Lead; Meet Tribe Tonight

New Westminster Commandos are back in first place in the Intercity Lacrosse League standings today, tied with Victoria Shamrocks.

The Commandos, paced by the great sniping of Alfie Wood, dropped third-place Vancouver Combines 16-12 last night to gain a first-place tie for the team and first place in the scoring race for Wood.

Wood scored four goals and an assist to bump his total to 22 points, three more than runner-up Jim Anderson of Combines who was held to one point. Jackie Northup added five points for Commandos and Gordie Pogue contributed a sterling goal-keeping job to foil Combines.

Shamrocks got two chances to move out in front alone this week. Tonight at the Arena they play North Shore Indians and tomorrow night they travel to New Westminster.

Rocks' line-up for tonight finds Darrell Popham replacing brother Eddie at rover position. Otherwise the line-up will be the same as the Rocks started against Nanaimo Saturday night.

Casey Admits Boob In Case Of Bob Feller

CHICAGO (AP)—Cleveland Indians and Casey Stengel arrived at the same conclusion today: The New York Yankee manager "Pulled a rock" in not picking Bob Feller to pitch in the all-star baseball game.

Last year, when Stengel also was the American League's team manager, he failed to pick Al Rosen, Indian third baseman who led the league in home runs.

Fans pick the eight starters for the 25-man club which meets the National League stars July 10 at Detroit. Stengel decides on pitchers and others.

LIMITED TO SELECTION

Limited unofficially to taking not more than one chucker from each club, Stengel decided on Bob Lemon. That was before Sunday's game—that no-hitter Feller pitched against Detroit.

When he heard about the no-hitter, Stengel remarked in New York:

"I guess I pulled the rock of the year. I just figured Lemon was a better guy to come in there as a relief pitcher for two or three innings."

Said Lemon when he learned he had been picked instead of Feller: "You're kidding?"

It was the second rhubarb for Feller in connection with the game. In 1948 he was selected for the all-star game but was kept off by the manager then, Lou Boudreau. Feller was booed for the rest of the season, although Boudreau took full responsibility.

BRAVES EXPLODE IN EIGHTH

A's Win Span Ended At Six

The Victoria Athletics' six-game winning streak came to an abrupt end at Tri City last night as the Braves beat the A's No. 1 pitcher Bill Osborn 7-1. It was Osborn's first loss after three straight wins and his fourth defeat of the year.

The A's, however, got a little of their own back by winning a game which had been postponed since April 29, when the last two innings were called so the Athletics could catch a train.

The A's broke the 3-3 tie that had prevailed from that seven-inning game by scoring single runs in the eighth and ninth to win by a 5-3 count. Ron Smith was given credit for the win after relieving John Blich in the first postponed frame.

Bill Dunn knocked in the winning run and Hal Jackson homered for the clincher.

PITCHER'S BATTLE

The full-length game was a pitcher's duel between Bill Osborn and Joe Nicholas, the underhand curve-ball artist.

The battle ended in the eighth when the Braves put on a concentrated attack good for seven runs, six runs scoring after two were out.

In two other games last night Salem edged Tacoma 4-3 and Vancouver nipped Yakima 7-5. Wenatchee game was rained out at Spokane.

Meanwhile business manager Reg Patterson believes he may have a seventh pitcher for the A's. He is seeking the services of Bill Carr, a right-hander who refuses to go to the Pioneer League and is currently playing semi-pro ball.

JACK GUEST BEATEN IN DIAMOND SCULLS OPENING

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, Eng. (Reuters)—Canadian oarsman Jack Guest was beaten by six feet in the first round of the Diamond Sculls even of the Royal regatta today. He was beaten by Denmark's Erik Larsen.

The 18-year-old Torontonian was hoping to repeat the triumph of his father, Jack Guest Sr., who in 1930 won the Diamond Sculls. His opponent, a 28-year-old blacksmith from Copenhagen, is such a powerful oarsman that he has to use extra-heavy oars.

Thus, the Canadian was eliminated from Diamond Sculls competition.

Larsen led at the start and was a length up on the Toronto boy at 400 metres.

He had increased his lead to two lengths at the 800-metre mark and hung grimly on to the advantage to the 1,500-metre post.

Here Guest spurred and drawing up steadily had reduced the Dane's lead to a length with 200 metres to go.

They sculled blade for blade down the final stretch with the Canadian just failing to draw level.

The time of 8 minutes, 10 seconds, was easily the fastest of the series.

Newcomer to Victoria's tennis world is Dr. Ladislav Dubeck, one-time Czech net star, who hopes to be given permission to intern soon at St. Joseph's Hospital. Dr. Dubeck has been in Canada since April and is now an orderly at the hospital. He has made one visit to the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club and while admittedly out of practice, nevertheless showed bystanders that after he has brushed up on his game he will be something to be reckoned with in any Canadian tournament he may enter.

The question arises whether Dr. Dubeck would be eligible to enter the city tourney at the Victoria Lawn starting Saturday. Club officials indicated they would deal with the problem when it confronted them, but said they were not sure of his eligibility, since he was not a member of any city club.

Once again California is preparing to send its younger stars on the north-west circuit, which includes Victoria, Tacoma and Seattle. Jim Moffet of San Francisco, president of the Northern California Tennis Association, informed this column the association is sending doubles pair Merwin Miller, former Stanford varsity player, and Ray Love, University of Southern California performer, on the current tour, along with Don McKee, 16, and Martin Halfhill, both of Burlingame. Moffet said McKee "is one of our best prospects... and Halfhill is not far behind him." McKee and Halfhill will be entered in the B. C. tourney here July 30-August 4 along with Love and Miller. The youngsters will be entered in the men's singles and doubles as well as the junior singles and doubles. Their names mean little to Victoria net followers, but if Moffet says they're good, we believe it. No one knows yet whether Lorne Main will be back to defend his B.C. crown. He's in England now, after being knocked out of the Wimbledon tourney.

Camosun Club is hoping to bag a title or two in the city tourney. Camosun doubles champs Sid Gaunt and Toad Garnett are entered, together with singles champ Bill Browne-Cave and women's singles title holder Val Speed. Val is also a member of the Victoria Lawn Club.

Camosun Club prexy Tom Wilson is off for the mainland today on a three-weeks' business trip.

Aces Blank Millmen To Grab Loop Lead

Butler Aces took over the leadership of the Senior A Men's Softball League last night after sweating out a 3-0 win over Forest Products.

Aces scored three runs in the first inning and hung on gamely behind the seven-hit shutout pitching of Archie Sluggert. Sluggert had a no-hitter going into the fourth until Joe Travis broke the streak with a double down the left field line.

But Ross was charged with the loss, and except for the bad start in the first inning both teams could still be playing a scoreless tie.

FURMISTON CONNECTS
Hal Yardley lined out a clean single to left field after Gus Hillton had grounded out. Mickey Smith dumped a bunt single down the third base line, and John Furmiston drove in both runners with a long triple to left centre.

Furmiston later scored the third run of the inning after Ronnie Benn had skied out to left.

It was only the slick fielding of the Aces that preserved the shutout. They snuffed out a rally by the millmen in the seventh inning with a fast double play by way of third to second, only failing by a step to complete a triple play on the same play.

Snead Regains P.G.A. Title

OAKMONT, Pa. (UP)—The P.G.A. golf championship has returned to a man who can do it justice—the old slammer, Sammy Snead.

Playing like a hungry pro, he shattered the hopes of chunky Walter Burkemo, of Franklin, Mich., with a 7 and 6 victory fashioned yesterday with two spectacular surges on the front nine holes of each round.

So the P.G.A. crown goes back to Snead, who held it in 1942 and 1949.

Snead is a cinch to be a real champion. He now is tied with Gene Sarazen as a three-time winner and only one man ever won more. That's Walter Hagen, a genius at match play.

Snead was 22 under par for 162 holes of match play. Twice he tied the competitive course record of 68 set by Bobby Jones in 1925, although each 68 included conceded putts.

Starry Field On Hand As Canadian Open Open Away

(TORONTO, CP)—An international field of 187—a collection of golfers from half a dozen countries—started today in the 42nd Canadian Open golf championship.

The winner was anybody's choice, but the guessing swung strongly toward the strong American entry headed by Jim Ferrier of San Francisco, the defending champion who was born in Australia.

Canada's chances for the championship last won in 1914 by Karl Kaffer of Ottawa appeared to rest in the hands of Stan Leonard of Vancouver, Bob Gray of Toronto, Scarboro, and Gordie Brydson, the home professional at the host Mississauga Golf Club course.

Ferrier, who was three strokes off the Canadian Open record last year when he took the Seagram gold cup with his 271 at the Royal Montreal, shot a relaxed 69 in his final practice round yesterday. That was two strokes off the 67 shot by Cary Middlecott, a highly-favored entrant from Memphis, Tenn., and five off the pre-tournament par-breaking 65 made yesterday by Earl Stewart of Dallas, Tex.

Doug Ford, the Briarcliff, N.Y., professional who fired a sensational 61 Monday, had a one-under-par 71.

South America was represented in its first bid for the Canadian title by Roberto Vincenzo of Argentina and Harold Simpson of Venezuela. Hawaii was represented by Herman Coello, another "first" for representation in the Canadian Open.

Of the three, Vincenzo is given the best chance of the newcomers, but he will have to contend with such strong contesting golfers as Ferrier, Ford, Middlecott, Jimmy Demaret of Oajal, Calif., Ted Croll of New Hartford, N.Y., runner-up a year ago, and a host of others in what is regarded as the strongest American entry list in many years.

Chisox, Giants Gain Ground

July 4 Finds Pennant Races Still Undecided

Major league baseball hits its traditional July 4th Independence holiday today with the experts still in a flap on the American League pennant race.

This is the day when the leaders of the American and National Leagues are supposed to go on and win the pennants. But this year, the remaining 12 weeks of the regular season may see some switches.

New York Yankees—perennial American League champions—are leading the junior circuit by only one-half game. Brooklyn Dodgers, powerhouse of the National and last year's runners-up, are leading by four and one-half games, a fairly comfortable cushion but not enough to ensure a pennant.

BROOKLYN LOSE

Chicago's amazing White Sox—the team picked to remain in its usual second-division spot—cut the Yankee lead to the half-game margin by a 4-1 victory over Cleveland. Brooklyn's edge over New York Giants was trimmed when the Dodgers were ripped by Boston Braves 4-3 and the Giants took a 13-inning marathon from Philadelphia 9-8. The Giant-Phillie game was the thriller Tuesday.

The Giants were never in front—except when the game was over. A single by Whitey Lockman with one out in the 13th scored pinch-runner Clint Hartung from third with the deciding run. Hartung was the 19th player used by the Giants. The Phils employed 16.

The Giants came battling back to tie the score five times, thrice in extra innings. Sid Gordon's bases-loaded single in the last of the ninth snapped a 3-3 tie and gave the Braves their tight win over Brooklyn.

PIERCE STOPS TRIBE
Lefty Billy Pierce snapped Cleveland's seven-game winning streak with a three-hit performance for the White Sox. It was his third triumph without a loss over the Indians.

Coleman's Column

By JIM COLEMAN

The laughs are all too infrequent in the sporting business these days and, accordingly, it is heartening to know that King Clancy is on his way back to the National Hockey League. Presently he is headed for the Pittsburgh Hornets in the American Hockey League but Pittsburgh is an affiliate of the Toronto Maple Leafs and it appears fairly obvious that Clancy will move up to the Maple Leaf coaching job when gentle Joe Primeau finally makes good his threat to retire from hockey. Joe, of course, could keep the Maple Leaf job for the remainder of his life but he has another business to which he must pay some attention.

There's never a dull moment when Clancy is in the vicinity. Considering that he never has taken a drink in his life, it's hard to understand how The King gets so much mileage in the early hours of the morning. When less hardy souls are tottering off to bed, Clancy is talking, Clancy is singing, Clancy is shouting and his flat-iron chin is wagging at a frightening rate.

Faith and it was a sad day when Clancy quit his post as referee-in-chief in the National Hockey League. The potted palms in hotel lobbies around the circuit were draped with mourning black and Clancy's favorite chairs were put into storage by the sorrowing management. Even Clancy had taken over the job of coaching the Cincinnati Shmohawks which was a fate slightly worse than death.

There was never another player like Clancy. My hockey mentor once told me that if he was given the power to select just one player around whom to build a hockey team, he'd take King Clancy from Ottawa and build a great Maple Leaf team around him.

It wasn't that Clancy had great mechanical ability. From a technical standpoint, there were many better players, even in his own era.

But, little Clancy had the heart and the flaming spirit. He played a desperate, headlong game that electrified his own teammates, and lifted the spectators out of their seats. Man—but he was a hockey player!

King By Name But A Prince At Heart

Despite his size, I suppose that Clancy could have been outstanding in any sport he chose as a profession. His father, King Clancy, was one of the great Ottawa all-round athletes in a day when Ottawa had more good athletes than any other city of its size in the world.

Allowing for Clancy Junior's slight tendency to exaggerate, there were times in the later years when Clancy Senior was somewhat uncommunicative.

King Junior came home from one hockey campaign during which he had bought a race horse.

King Senior merely nodded to him when he returned to his Ottawa home but, about the third day, they were sitting at the dinner table when he fixed his son with a baleful glare.

"See in the papers that you bought a race horse," he grumped. "Yup," replied his dutiful son.

"Always THOUGHT you were crazy," grumped the old man. "Now I KNOW you're crazy."

End of conversation.

Clancy's pugnacious appearance hides a merry heart and, actually, the only person with whom he has been angry was himself when he made a losing bet on a steed in his younger days.

He Wasn't Mad At Anyone

The closest he came to losing his temper was when he was officiating a bitter Stanley Cup series between the Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens a few years ago. It was one of those series in which the referee continually is being heckled by the crowd.

After one game, Paul Parizeau, the puckish sports editor of Le Canada, printed an old picture of Clancy wearing a Maple Leaf sweater. Underneath the picture, Paul printed these words: "When is Clancy going to take off this Toronto sweater?"

Clancy was justifiably furious. However, a couple of days later, Clancy had even forgotten how to spell Parizeau's name.

For all his pugnacity, Clancy really can't lick his lips. He was the hero of a hundred ice-battles and loser of every one of them.

The Maple Leafs and Montreal Maroons were brawling all over the ice one night and Charlie Conacher and Harvey Jackson determined that Clancy must win at least one fight in his long career.

Conacher and Jackson grabbed a startled Maroon, wrestled him to the ice and dumped the foaming Clancy on top of him.

Well pleased with themselves, they skated back to the players' bench. As they were stepping through the gate, Conacher nudged Jackson.

"Don't look now," said Conacher, "but Clancy's on the bottom again."

Bays Narrowly Escape Defeat From Jokers

Jokers came close last night—they came within 23 seconds of toppling Foul Bay, but the senior B league-leading Bays pumped in two goals in those final seconds to win 4-3 in a dazzling lacrosse tilt at the arena. It was the seventh straight win for Foul Bay.

Going into the last minute of the game, Jokers were holding grimly onto a one-goal lead, the score at that point being 3-2. Watching the clock cautiously a pair of Jokers defencemen tried to stall the ball in front of their own net.

Norm Kowalyk, speedy Foul Bay forward, stormed in and broke up the freeze play, stealing the ball from the stick of one of the rearguards. He scooped a quick pass over to John Newton and Newton knotted the score with a blazing shot to the lower corner.

With only five seconds left in the contest it was Kowalyk and Newton again who provided the fireworks. Newton worked the ball up the floor but was pinned in front of the net by the Jokers' defencemen.

He threaded a short pass to Kowalyk who was being checked near the Jokers' nets. Held away from the goal, Kowalyk scored the winning goal on an amazing overhead shot that beat goalie Jim Heatherington.

Duffers Who Know They'll Improve Are Life Of Game

By JIMMY DEMARET

Three-Time Masters' Winner Duffers are the professional's fuel for his own activity.

No one can tell me that a pro's biggest pay is the dollars he picks up for teaching. The real pay-off is the grin of the duffer who suddenly hits the pin because he swung exactly as he was told.

As I wrote in the P.G.A.'s Teachers' Guide, the real optimists on the courses are the boys who know their next game will be a better one—even though it isn't usually.

You can't hold people like that down.

Therein lies the future of golf. Having finished the round, the typical whiffer surveys his score of 195, and says: "If it hadn't been for this and that, I'd have done better. Wait until next Saturday."

"Whereas it takes 18 holes in par or less to keep a good shooter, a professional I know of duffers in general, 'it takes only one good shot in a day to keep a whiffer happy.'"

Duffers want to improve, but are reasonable about it. It would shake the souls of some of them to step out some fine day and shoot an 80 instead of a 98.

The lower the score, they feel the greater the fall next time.

They're happy with a par on the seventh.

Along with the don't care duffers comes the army of tomorrow's golfers.

VICTORIAN SPRING

by Cecil Maiden

XXXVI

The Murray carriage had almost reached Craighallan. It had come along at a brisk clip all the way from Victoria harbor—for even Zeke knew that the two inside it were impatient to be at their journey's end.

Angus Murray and Letty had talked most of the way, about the parting from Amelia, but they had not talked sadly about it. Despite the tears Amelia had finally shed when they last saw her, leaning over the ship's rail (and the fuss Mrs. Murray was making, and the sadness of the Cridges, and of those other friends who had still been at the ship's side when she pulled away), Letty had never really seen Amelia looking so truly happy.

It was almost as if this were Amelia's wedding day. There had been a peace in her face, and a sort of quiet fulfillment. Even her voice, never a melodious one, had a new ring in it today, and the blue shawl which Letty had given her at the last, as a surprise gift, had added a touch to the plain grey traveling dress that had for once made Amelia look even beautiful.

If Letty got back to the headland in time—before the Eurydice drew abreast on her way out to sea—she would wave her bonnet, and Amelia would wave her blue shawl, as a signal that Letty was home again, and free again.

That was why they were hurrying so. Letty had sent her a message last night through Bob Twining. If he was acquitted, he would be waiting at Craighallan. He would take the short cut through the fields. Perhaps he was there already...

Craighallan, for the present time at any rate, was home for Letty. Mrs. Langley had insisted on that, and so had all the others there. And if Letty was free, he was to come over too, and stay as long as he was able.

The sun was just beginning to sink, now, and all the world was bright with it.

"Look, your best, m'dear," Angus had said, and had provided for Letty, despite all remonstrances, the funds for a new dress. It was a dress for the summer, a yellow crinoline, very plain and simple.

They emerged from the last belt of trees and swung round and up the bend towards Craighallan. They were already in Craighallan land, and the clover and the early honeysuckle were there to prove it.

Letty leaned forward in the carriage, holding her breath. Angus, dressed in his very best, and even carrying a gold-headed cane this time ("When you see me with this thing, Letty, you know it's an occasion!") squared his shoulder and sat very erect.

Then suddenly, as the carriage swept in through the Craighallan gates, Letty gave a little cry—"Mr. Murray, look! Up on top of the hill..."

He followed the girl's bright eyes—and prodded Zeke with his fancy cane. Zeke looked, too; then jumped down and opened the carriage door. Almost without knowing it Letty was through the door and running up the meadow.

"Close the door again, Zeke."

PIMPLES?

Try these three simple steps to remove pimples from your face:

1. Wash your face with hot water at bedtime.
2. Dry—then rub Dr. Chase's Ointment gently into the pores.
3. Leave on over night and wash off in the morning.

Continue this for only one week—if you are not more than delighted with your clear, smooth skin, we will pay you double the price.

DR. CHASE'S ANTISEPTIC OINTMENT

said Angus. "She won't be coming back."

"Yes, sir."

Jervis was striding over the hill. Letty raced up through the tall grasses toward him, her bonnet off, her chestnut curls flying wildly in the wind behind her.

And Angus knew, even as he looked, what the answer was. He kept the carriage a moment longer—watching. He whipped out his handkerchief and blew his nose; the dust on the road! What was the colony coming to?

Up near the crest of the meadow Jervis himself was hurrying now. And suddenly they were together.

His arms went round her, and as he lifted her flushed face towards him, tenderly, possessively, he kissed her, and it was

Red Demonstration At Dedication Ceremony

LONDON (UP)—Communist demonstrators struggled with police outside St. Paul's Cathedral today during a ceremony honoring U.S. airmen killed in the Second World War.

The Queen and Princess Elizabeth, Prime Minister Clement Attlee, Winston Churchill, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and top British society figures watched the brief scuffle.

Several persons were arrested after police subdued the demonstrators who shouted "Send the Yanks back" and "Britain for the British." Many watchers shouted "scum" at the Communists and a woman hit one on the head with her handbag.

The ceremony was to honor 28,000 U.S. fliers based in Britain who died during the war. A chapel was dedicated to them in the cathedral.

BAY Women's Dresses, Second Floor

By ART STOTT

While Ernie Peden makes restrained suggestions to his fellow clubmen here that Greater Victoria should have an outdoor swimming pool for the youngsters, his sister makes more direct appeals to the citizens of Kamloops for an open air pool by the Thompson River. Eleanor, Mrs. Sowerby now, developed into a first class swimmer under Archie McKinnon's coaching at the Y.M.C.A. and Crystal Garden pools. She's not happy with the aquatic arrangements in her new hometown.

Last Friday it was hot at Kamloops. Ask me. I was there. The heat lies about knee deep. Above that it lifts in dry clouds. It's the kind of weather that hollers out loud for a swimming pool. Of course, you can dodge into the Leland Cafe, which is air conditioned, but the change almost gives you pneumonia. Then, too, after you've spent half an hour over a cool drink, bought to justify your retreat from the heat, the waitresses keep coming over and asking if there'll be anything else, sir?

Stott

WALKING DOWN the sidewalks of the Kamloops business section to the park isn't as bad as that Indian fakir trick—the one where the guy treads barefoot on the hot embers. It's not that bad, but it's bad. When you get to the spread of grass and trees, it's a relief. There, before you, rolls the Thompson. Coming in directly ahead is the North Thompson. They look cool and inviting. They're not fooling. They're cool.

After you've struggled into your trunks in the blackout of a windowless changing room, rolled up your clothes and packed them to the river bank with you, you plunge in. The shock's terrific. You can't imagine a place so hot having water so cold without ice cubes in it.

THAT'S ONLY the first of your shocks. Hoping to impress the natives with your fancy crawl, you strike out for the diving equipment which is moored this side of midstream. When you figure you've gone far enough with your head down, you look up. The diving float's still as far away, but it's moved up to the right. At that point, you realize the flow of the river is more than you'd thought, so you angle off downstream to a long floating wharf, held in place with piles for unwary guys like you.

If you're still bent on showing off, you can dive from the two springboards or the tower, and again you'll learn to appreciate the pull of the river. You come up about 30 feet from where you entered. The transportation is courtesy of the Thompson.

PROVIDED YOU have the strength of the kids who swim there, you'll paddle slowly back to shore, growing numb in transit. When you've hauled yourself out and regained your breath, you can go over and talk to Eleanor Peden Sowerby about the river.

She'll explain it all to you. It's cold because it's glacially fed. It's fast because a lot of water wants to run downhill and nothing's stopping it.

The aquatic club at Kamloops has been trying for some time to acquire a pool. Early this year the Rotary Club made tentative arrangements to take on the job of providing one as a service project. Something happened and there isn't any pool.

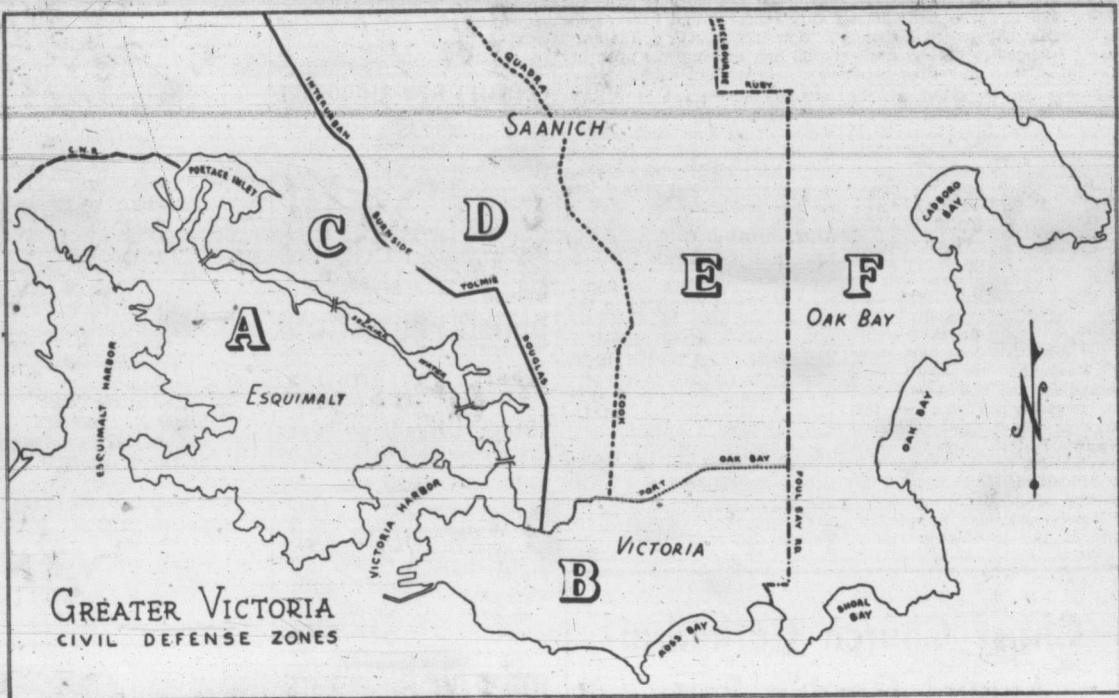

It's hard to teach youngsters to swim in the river, Eleanor explains. She should know. Last Friday she had a batch of potential champions practising for a water show they planned for the week-end. Kamloops young people have learned to stand the cold. They were scarcely blue after half an hour in the river. But you shudder a bit for the tiny tots. That river goes by so fast.

JEANETTE, as pretty a life-guard as you'll see in B.C. or any other part of Canada, gets a little worried when she watches her charges at play. Kids do the darndest things, and the Thompson is no place for tricks. It has too many of its own. Yet in the water off the park beach there have been few casualties.

What worries Jeanette is that a calamity may occur. Then the citizens would clamor for a pool. She looks to Mrs. Sowerby, and you can't help thinking she's looking to the right person for action.

When you stop, as you're driving out of town, and gaze down on it from the highway lookout, you're impressed by the sight of Kamloops. It's growing and it looks neat and tidy. It's the sort of town you'd expect to produce a high sense of community consciousness, a consciousness that would take due note of the desirability of providing a swimming pool.

A GUY VISITING the place might be inclined to criticize the town for not having one. He might feel that way, unless he came from Victoria which is considerably larger, considerably more prosperous and still hasn't a public outdoor swimming pool.

German Breeds Dog Obedience Trial Winners

Mr. and Mrs. E. Graham's German shepherd, "Flash of Finerty," made the highest score in the obedience trials being held here in conjunction with the Vancouver Island Dog Fanciers' Association championship show. The dog made 193 points out of a possible 200 in the Open A Class.

Leading the Novice A Class was Miss Sara Robertson's dachshund, Sir Rowland, with 183 points.

Planning Area Is Designated

Acting Municipal Affairs Minister E. C. Carson has advised City Council that Saanich peninsula and part of Vancouver Island, south and east of the E. & N. Railway Company land grant, is a planning area under authority of the Town Planning Act.

While it does not involve Victoria in any action of expense against its wish, according to Mr. Carson, the formation of this planning area will enable the city to meet with adjacent municipalities to discuss matters of regional interest and "to take action as it sees fit, and for this purpose to join together with the other municipalities to form a regional board."

Fatal Car Mishap Causes Criticism

NANAIMO—Pending an inquest this afternoon into the death Sunday of Susan Rochford, fatally injured at a beach at Departure Bay by a runaway car, City Council voiced criticism of the federal and provincial governments for delay in action in building a seawall along the beach front. A seawall would have halted the car, authorities said, after it slipped its brakes and careened down the crowded beach.

The council has passed a resolution protesting the delay, and on Thursday Mayor Earle C. Westwood will attend a protest meeting of Departure Bay residents.

The car ran over the baby and injured the mother, Mrs. Barbara Rochford.

CITY DEFENSE PLAN ROUNDS INTO SHAPE

Six Self-Contained Areas Planned; Volunteer Corps' Heads To Be Named

Electrically-controlled air raid sirens will alert each of Greater Victoria's newly set up civil defense zones, Leonard G. Hatcher, civil defense co-ordinator, said today.

Six large sirens will be placed strategically throughout the area within two to three weeks, while 14 or more in addition will be ordered later, he declared.

They are to be controlled by a switchboard at Oak Bay municipal hall.

At least one siren will be placed in each zone within the defense boundaries pictured in the map above.

Each zone is divided so residents of each area will be afforded assistance in case of emergency and possible evacuation.

Outer limits of the zones will not be determined for some months yet, when target and cushion areas will be established.

Personnel are yet to be appointed, Mr. Hatcher said, but each zone will have a subdivision controller and will be completely self-contained.

NO LICENSE. William J. Beattie, 2013 Oak Bay Avenue, was found guilty in city police court today of careless driving, and was fined $35. Charge arose out of an accident May 27 at Richmond Avenue and Leighton Road.

According to Mr. Laythe, joint Canadian-United States action in enforcement of international fishing convention regulations will continue unchanged.

Ask Police Action On Circus Problem. City police will be asked to give the question of animal care special attention at the forthcoming Clyde Beatty circus, City Council announced.

S.P.C.A. here had protested the circus visit. Ald. Margaret Christie said it was too late to make any change and Ald. M. Mooney felt the young people should have an opportunity to see a circus.

U.C. Withholds Action. No decision has yet been made by the Public Utilities Commission on a public hearing of Vancouver Island Coach Line's application for an increase in passenger and freight rates.

Company accounts are being checked by commission auditors.

CARELESS DRIVING. Pleading guilty to driving without a license June 17, Edwin V. Horth, Sidney, was fined $30 today in city police court.

Water Consumption 633,000,000 Gallons

Greater Victoria area consumed 26,000,000 more gallons of water this June than last to set an all-time record of 633,000,000 gallons for the month, Ron Upward, engineer superintendent for Greater Victoria water district, revealed today.

In June of 1950 total consumption was 607,000,000 gallons.

Average monthly consumption over a year's period last year was 458,000,000 gallons. The figure is expected to go higher this year, however, since installation of the new pipeline.

"Consumption is going up each year as the district grows," Mr. Upward said. "People do not get all the water they want but they still get more each year."

Sockeye Run On Again In Island Waters

The annual sockeye salmon run is on. Beginning of the valuable fish harvest has been announced by Leo L. Laythe, regional director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service at Portland, Ore. Presence of sockeye in Vancouver Island waters was confirmed today by federal fisheries department officials here.

Gillnet boats took up positions off the mouth of the Fraser River on Monday. Some time must elapse before an estimate of the season's catch may be made, but since 1951 is one of the three-out-of-four "off" years for sockeye, the total yield is not expected to be unusually large, says fisheries department sources.

According to Mr. Laythe, joint Canadian-United States action in enforcement of international fishing convention regulations will continue unchanged.

Ask Police Action On Circus Problem. City police will be asked to give the question of animal care special attention at the forthcoming Clyde Beatty circus, City Council announced.

S.P.C.A. here had protested the circus visit. Ald. Margaret Christie said it was too late to make any change and Ald. M. Mooney felt the young people should have an opportunity to see a circus.

Gruber Due Back Today After Holiday

Hans Gruber, conductor of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra, sent word to The Daily Times from the western United States Tuesday night, that he was due back in the city today.

Mr. Gruber has been vacationing in the East for the past two months after a strenuous season here, culminating in his presentation of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony at Memorial Arena, which was hailed as the outstanding effort to date of the Victoria Symphony.

Mr. Gruber's parents live in Toronto.

His first assignment on return here will be next Tuesday evening's concert at Victoria High School, when the symphony plays for the Summer School, starting at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Gruber will conduct the orchestra in Schubert's Rosamunde Overture, the Unfinished Symphony and Beethoven's Symphony No. 5 in C Minor.

Construction Down By Third In City

Lowest Half-Year Building Total In Five Years; High Costs Blamed

Continued jumps in building costs are reflected today in a one-third drop in value of construction and corresponding decrease in number of homes, for which permits have been taken out in Victoria for the first half of 1951.

Figures released by J. W. Oosterink, city building inspector, showed an over-all construction value of $2,999,702 up to the end of June this year compared with $4,528,018 for the same period last year.

Permits for dwellings numbered 68 for a total construction value of $457,650 in 1951 against 109 permits for dwellings at a total cost of $675,000 up to the end of June last year.

TREND CONTINUES. A similar trend, so far as houses, is noted in Saanich, while Esquimalt has about the same number of dwellings. Oak Bay figures are not yet available and Central Saanich has no comparison, since the municipality has not been in operation a year yet.

Victoria City's construction total for the six months is the lowest it has been in the past five years over the same period. In June alone this year 138 permits for construction amounting to $304,300 were issued, compared with 175 for a construction value of $1,058,226 in June of last year.

Large permits in the six months include McCall's Mortuary, $25,000; Victoria Press Ltd. sprinkling system, $18,860; provincial government building, $150,000 and an auto court at the Gorge, $133,000.

In Saanich, construction value increased from $1,065,755 up to June last year to $1,179,095 this year. Included, however, was a $360,000 addition to the D.V.A. Hospital.

Figures released by J. S. Taylor, building inspector, showed 138 permits for dwellings at a total cost of $634,620, compared with 216 for 0946,700 up to June in 1950.

Ed Fulcher, engineer for Esquimalt reported 81 permits for construction value of $665,500 up to June 30 this year compared with 87 permits for construction totalling $240,810 last year. Included this year is a $370,000 addition to Esquimalt High.

Robert P. Taylor, Sooke Road, was fined $35 on a charge of careless driving June 23.

Arthur Chapple, 2165 Fair Street, was fined $25 in police court today for theft, June 30, of groceries from a Safeway Store, 707 Fort Street.

Marrows, Wild Blackberries
Newcomers To City Shops

By PENNY SAVER

Ah! Such a wonderful variety of fruits and vegetables to greet me on this fine day. Young marrows, just arrived to take their place on the counters, at 15 cents a pound. There were baskets, by the dozen, of luscious raspberries at 25 cents a basket, and for the very special variety, the Williams, that is, 10 pennies more.

Substituting honey for sugar: Use equal amount. Reduce liquid 1/2 cupful to cup of honey.

Loganberries, large and luscious, 25 cents a basket, and their end-of-the-season pals, strawberries, 30 pennies a basket. The smaller strawberries sell in bulk at 25 cents a pound.

Watermelon is down to 9 pennies, and plums, rather confusin' but amusin', anywhere from 23 to 30 cents a pound.

Currants are fine local berries that average about 38 cents a pound and there's black and red from which to choose.

Could almost smell the vines and leaves from whence they came as I picked up a basket of wild blackberries, this morning. Delightfully tasty and 35 cents to buy. In the cherry bins, there were local Royal Annes tipping the scale at 20 cents a pound, local Bings, 39 cents, and cooking cherries, 20 cents the pound lot.

Seedless grapes have plucked away a few pennies, here and there, and settled down to 49 cents a pound.

English gooseberries, my dears, at least an inch thick, 29 cents a pound, and their smaller Canadian sisters, 4 pennies less, a pound.

At this time of year it's fashionable for a fruit or vegetable to be one of three or four varieties. Beans, for instance, the broad type, 17 cents a pound, and the Kentucky Wonders, 25 cents a pound. No. 1 and 2 tomatoes, 21 and 29 cents a pound, and the sub-acids, are holding out at 35 cents the pound.

On the whole, the fresh fruit and vegetable scene is strictly local. On the imported list you'll find honeydews, at 75 luxurious pennies, bananas, still in short supply, but at their usual 2 pounds for 39 cents, price.

Plums were setting up a rather odd set of price tags, today. In one shop they were beautifully dark, and ready to bite into, at 39 cents a pound, and on another counter, and lighter in color, 23 cents a pound is all you'd have to pluck from your change purse.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Your Job To Keep It Alive
Independence Is For You;

Today in all free countries the words "freedom" and "independence" mean more than they ever had before because the whole modern world has had such dramatic examples of what loss of freedom can mean to the human spirit.

Slavery such as had never been known in our civilization has descended on millions of the world's people. Today independence is something which we should be on guard to save.

A country is only as free as the individuals who are a part of it. Whenever the individual right to pursuit of happiness, to free speech, free worship, to free enterprise are limited, the freedom of the nation in which these people live is also endangered.

Look at yourself as one little link in the big chain of human life. Are you intelligently exploring your right to vote, your right to speak up in the higher levels to make the impact of Mr. Average man and woman felt? Are you seeing to it that you are free from political prejudices, from fatigue, from inertia, from mundane worries, which inhibit your vital part in the fight for independence?

In order to be a valuable part in your nation you must first be sure that you, as an individual, are free from a lowered state of health, from "I don't care" and "I can't help it" attitudes, from a negative form of thinking, from limitation by the small horizon of your own little family, from petty worries and jealousies, from a selfish ingrown attitude.

For, as sure as you are there,

It has been discovered that the lack of Vitamin C is a major factor in summer energy slump. During hot weather your body burns up Vitamin C fast so you feel tired when the supply gets low... and your resistance to disease goes down. As this essential vitamin cannot be stored in the body, it is imperative that you serve foods and beverages that provide ample replenishment every day.

Cosby Pottage
Wed Saturday
In St. David's

St. David's-By-The-Sea was the scene of a double-ring ceremony, Saturday evening at 7:30, when Cosby, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pottage, Cordova Bay, repeated vows with Christopher John Combe, stepson of Mrs. E. N. Combe, Victoria and Nanaimo, before Rev. C. B. Price.

A ballerina-length gown of softest petal pink taffeta enriched with panels of lace, was worn by the bride who chose a coronet of pink petals with touches of blue forget-me-nots to wear in her hair. She carried a colonial bouquet of sweetheart roses and sweet peas. Her only ornament was a pendant necklace of pearls and brilliants, and matching earrings, a gift of the groom. Mr. Pottage gave his daughter in marriage.

In pastel contrast, the bride's cousin, Miss Patricia Sharpe, chose a gown of turquoise blue crepe designed with inserts of white lace and white accessories. She wore a corsage bouquet of pink and white flowers.

Fred McMillan, New Westminster, was best man, and ushers were C. Alan M. Pottage and Rodrich Bain.

Traditional wedding music was played by the bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. Alan Pottage, and "The Lord's Prayer" sung by Misses Norma and Vivian Lindstrom.

"The Pools," overlooking Cordova Bay, was setting for the reception where the wedding table was set with lace cloth, sweet peas and three-tier cake encircled in tulle. A close friend of the family, J. Archer, proposed the toast.

For traveling on honeymoon motor trip to the United States the bride donned a green ensemble with summer-white accessories.

The newlyweds will make New Westminster their home.

'How Like Myself,' Thought Woman Of Tragic Appeal Of 18-Year-Old Girl

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: As I read the story of V.S., the 18-year-old girl who finds herself very confused and believes she is mentally unbalanced, I thought, "How like myself, at the same age!" I longed to put my arms around her, and impress upon her the importance of getting psychiatric help without delay.

I was so disturbed at the age of 18 that I would lose my voice if called upon to recite in class. In those days, 20 years ago, we hadn't the guidance clinics and the other developments in social hygiene that we have today. Consequently my distress went unnoticed, undiagnosed and untreated; and of course I paid in increasing suffering for this neglect. I was nearly 35 when finally I took myself to a psychiatrist, and by then it was a difficult matter to unravel the pattern of emotional disorder.

However, I was accepted at one of the psychiatric clinics, and in the past two years have continued twice-a-week interviews, of an hour each. There is still much work to be done, but I have made such progress in gaining remedial insight into my troubled self.

GIRL SHOULD GET
LIFT FROM LETTER
DEAR CL.: Since the appeal from V.S. was discussed in this column on May 28, we've received much warhearted mail on the subject; and I have chosen your letter for publication, as a typical sample of the general reaction. M.H.

Reginald Stone will play on his Hammond organ throughout the afternoon and there will be special attractions for children.

To Mark A Golden Wedding

On the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dresser of Brentwood Bay will be "at home" to their friends on Sunday, July 8, in the afternoon and evening, at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pomeroy, 1235 Montrose Avenue.

They were married in Victoria on July 10, 1901, in the old Victoria West Methodist Church by Rev. Barracough.

A 25th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Leason entertained last Saturday evening with a large party at their home, 1031 Clare Street, and again an "at home" Sunday afternoon and evening for relatives and friends, on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Saturday evening a presentation of Wedgwood china was made to the honor couple who also received many gifts of flowers and silver.

The refreshment table for both the Saturday party and Sunday reception was covered with a lace cloth, and decorated with vases of pink and mauve sweet peas and ferns. It was centred with an anniversary cake.

Acting as servitors were Mrs. Ida Leason, Miss Viola Sands and Miss Shirley Tribe.

Mr. and Mrs. Leason were assisted in receiving guests by their daughter Barbara. There are also two sons, Herbert, Barbara's twin, and Raymond.

To Live In Mainland City

On a honeymoon at Qualicum, with future plans to make their home in Vancouver, are recent newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. James Dennis Donkersley, who were united in marriage by Archdeacon G. H. Holmes in St. George's Church, Salt Spring Island, Saturday evening.

W. T. Evans gave the bride in marriage. The bride is the only daughter of Mrs. Helen Kraft, Duncan, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Donkersley, Ganges.

A lovely floor-length wedding gown of white nylon net over satin was worn by the bride. A broad jacket of white lace, and finger-tip veil held in a crown of pearls complemented the gown. She carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

Miss Gladys Mount, maid of honor, chose a gown of pink net while the bridesmaid, Miss Phyllis Donkersley, sister of the groom, was gowned in pale blue taffeta. The attendants carried colonial bouquets of pink and white rose-buds.

Allan Francis was best man, and Fred May was usher.

Newlyweds Mr. And Mrs. Eede To Live In Eastern Canada

London, Ont., will be the new home of Patricia Elizabeth Girvin, who exchanged marriage vows with Arthur William Eede, Saturday evening in St. John's Anglican Church. Canon George Biddle officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Girvin, Howe Street, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Myrtle Eede, Beach Drive, and late Dr. J. W. Eede.

Standard baskets of white gladioli and stocks with ivy and white roses decorated the church, and guest pews were marked with daisies, stocks and ivy.

The bride's white satin wedding gown was styled on princess lines, side fullness and draped back falling into short train. The bodice was complemented with nylon net yoke and lily-point sleeves and softly draped bertha. Her finger-tip length veil of French silk illusion net fell from a small cap embroidered with pearl hearts. She carried a shower bouquet of gardenias and ivy trails.

Mrs. Henry Ashmore, matron of honor, wore an ivy green taffeta gown shot with bronze styled in princess lines with small jacket. Her bouquet was white gladioli and ivy.

Bridesmaids, Misses Wanda Morrison and Mary O'Connell, were gowned in foam-green taffeta shot with silver. Their bouquets were white baby gladioli with long ivy trails and white ribbon.

Misses Janice Hickman and Jane Hyslop, junior bridesmaids, wore short ruffled frocks of pale green nylon marquisette over pale blue.

The groom chose John Girvin, brother of the bride, as best man, and ushers were Henry Ashmore, Jack Meredith, Frank Hyslop and Bryan Beach.

At a reception held in Olde England Inn large bouquets of multi-colored roses decorated the bride's table which was centred with the wedding cake. Charles O'Neill, Duncan, proposed the toast.

Upon leaving for her honeymoon, traveling on the island and

BEDTIME STORY

by Thornton W. Burgess

If you fall just try again.
All will not have seen of vain.
—Old Mother Nature.

Buster Bear was having a fit of temper. He isn't a pleasant sight when he has a fit of temper. Few folks are. Buster had several of Prickly Porky's little spears sticking in one paw. They hurt. He had struck at Prickly Porky when the latter had startled him. He had struck before he had time to think.

"I'll get you for this," growled Buster Bear.

The only answer Prickly Porky made was to rustle the thousand little spears in his coat. In a way that was answer enough. At the sound Buster backed a little more. He already had all he wanted of those little spears.

Now there is one trick that Buster knows for getting the best of Prickly Porky. He knows that underneath Prickly Porky has no little spears, only soft fur. That is the only place he can be touched without danger from those little spears. If Prickly Porky can be turned over on his back he cannot protect himself.

He walked around and around Prickly Porky and all the time he was growling and snarling. Prickly Porky didn't make a sound. He just waited. He knew just what Buster Bear wanted to do and he kept close to the ground, with all his thousand little spears pointing in all directions from his back and his head and his sides and his tail.

"Don't you dare throw your little spears at me," snarled Buster.

"I'm not throwing my little spears at you," retorted Prickly Porky. "I couldn't throw them at you if I wanted to. I don't throw my little spears."

"Oh yes you do!" growled Buster Bear. "You threw one just now and it pricked me on the nose and it hurt. You did it purposely. You know you did. But you'll be sorry. I'll make you the sorriest Porcupine that ever lived."

"I didn't throw it," grunted Prickly Porky. "If one hit you it was accidental. Probably it was a loose one on my tail. I didn't know anything about it."

Buster Bear didn't believe that. No, sir, Buster Bear didn't believe that. That little quill had come flying through the air and pricked him on the nose. He was sure Prickly Porky had thrown it purposely. A lot of people believe that Porcupines can deliberately throw their quills and do. They cannot.

H.I.S. Funds
To Hospitals

B.C. hospitals will receive about $2,900,000 more this year than last from the Hospital Insurance Service, Health Minister Douglas Turnbull made known.

At the same time, he pointed out that if any deficit is incurred by the hospitals over and above what is allowed for certain uncontrollable expenditures, then the hospital insurance service will not assume responsibility for such deficits.

This is in accordance with the fixed budget method of hospital operation approved by the legislature this spring.

Plan Meeting
On Salaries

The special cabinet committee dealing with provincial civil servants' wage demands will meet the five-man bargaining committee of the B.C. Government Employees' Association at 2 p.m. Thursday, it was learned at the Parliament Buildings.

The meeting, called by the cabinet to clarify certain points which apparently had been misunderstood in the course of offers and counter-offers, will be held in the main council chamber.

Provincial Secretary W. T. Straith, who heads the government's negotiating committee, will preside at the meeting.

Subdivision Curbs
Asked By Council

Resolutions to provide Victoria with authority to halt subdivision of small lots into saleable portions and to permit a charge for persons wanting more than an eight foot driveway across a public sidewalk, were endorsed by Victoria council Tuesday for submission to the U.B.C.M. convention in October. The resolution is aimed at preventing "semi-speculation" in pieces of property not large enough to permit the construction of a dwelling.

Police, Fire Chiefs At Lake Erie Resort Ousted

CRYSTAL BEACH, Ont. (CP)—This Lake Erie resort, where reform groups say corruption and debauchery are rife, today is without a police chief or a fire chief. In addition, 17 of its 24 firemen have resigned.

Provincial police have been handling law enforcement since Monday. They had previously started an investigation into charges that the village 20 miles west of Buffalo had become a "wide-open town."

The heads of the seven-member police force and the fire brigade were dismissed Tuesday night at an open meeting called to inquire into Police Chief Gilbert Robertson's suspension of constable John Sandel. It was announced at the meeting that Sandel had been reinstated. After the meeting, the 17 firemen quit in protest against their chief's dismissal.

But the firings and the reinstatement apparently did not satisfy the more than 150 citizens who crowded into a hot little room over the firehall for the meeting.

Said school board chairman William Holmes, after the meeting:

"This has done nothing to solve our problem. I don't want a police chief fired. I want the provincial police to stay in charge of this town until a nasty situation here is cleaned up."

DOCTOR SAYS
By Dr. Edwin P. Jordan
chances of having another are about one in twenty; put the other way round, parents who have had one mongoloid infant have about nineteen chances out of twenty that the next will be normal.
Finally, people often ask whether the birth of a mongoloid child is the fault of the parents. It is not. The birth of a mongoloid child does not reflect in any way on the parents, the diet, the relatives or the medical care. Careless talk of this sort is painful for those who have had this misfortune and does not reflect favorably on the intelligence or kindness of those who indulge in it.

Beat Coyotes, Farmers Now Fight Mice
RED DEER, Alta. (CP) — Farmers east of here are wondering which is worst, coyotes or mice.
Last year the farmers decried war on the pesky, wily coyotes. They vowed they'd wipe him out.
They succeeded fairly well. Too much so, perhaps, because now they are becoming increasingly aware of a new threat—mice, millions of them.
As experienced hunters and trappers and some farmers know well, the coyote is the mouse's greatest enemy. The coyote as a mouser makes any cat look like an amateur.
He trots with characteristic abandon across the prairie, his nose alert to the scent of mice. Then, unannounced, he smells them directly beneath his feet, just under the surface of the land.

After one mongoloid child the

New Marks Claimed For U.S. Aircraft

Douglas Skyrocket Search Plane
Figured To Have Beaten 1,200 M.P.H.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Douglas Skyrocket, a supersonic research plane, has flown "faster and higher" than any other known aircraft, the navy announced Tuesday.

The accepted speed record is 670.981 miles an hour, established Sept. 18, 1948, by a North American F-86.

The Bell X-1 in 1949 was reported to have reached about 1,000 miles an hour for brief periods in its excursions into the range beyond the speed of sound. It traveled at altitudes more than 10 miles high.

The navy said exact speed and height at which the swept-wing Skyrocket has operated are being withheld for security reasons.

Marvin Miles, aviation editor of the Los Angeles Times, estimated the plane's actual speed was just short of 1,300 miles an hour. He said his information was that the craft was shooting for twice the speed of sound—1,320 miles an hour at high altitudes — and barely missed.

UP 70,000 FEET

He put the altitude around 70,000 feet, pointing out that the navy specified the mark was for a piloted plane. The altitude record for a piloted balloon is 72,394 feet.

The navy announced 18 months ago that test pilot Eugene F. May had flown the Skyrocket in excess of the speed of sound.

The air force has disclosed that the F-86 has topped its world record, exceeding 700 miles an hour. But the exact speed has not been announced.

Navy Cmdr. R. M. Gibbons, bureau of air representative at Douglas, told a press conference the records were set June 11 at Muroc.

The flights were made under rocket power after the aircraft was launched from a B-29 mother ship at 35,000 feet.

At the controls was Bill Bridgman, Douglas test pilot. He described the flight during the June 11 tests as follows: "Six seconds after being dropped from the mother ship the Skyrocket went into a 45-degree angle climb, its best climbing angle.

"I hung on until I reached the altitude at which I wanted to push over and level off. The speed record was made in level flights."

BRIDGE LESSON

by Oswald Jacoby

Caution and enterprise, well mixed, are the chief ingredients of the bridge style of Percy Uris, prominent New York bidder. Both ingredients were neatly displayed in today's hand, played by Uris at the Cavendish Club in New York.

His opening bid of one no-trump was slightly on the bold side. I like it myself chiefly because of the wealth of honor cards in the hand, but many fine players would consider the hand just a shade too weak for one no-trump.

North's response of two clubs was the Stayman Convention, asking South to show a major suit if possible. South dutifully showed his biddable hearts, and West promptly raised to game.

West opened the king of spades, and Uris won with the ace. He then laid down the ace of hearts and continued with a low heart, allowing East to take the king and jack. East then returned a spade, forcing dummy to ruff.

The time for caution had now arrived. Should declarer rely on the success of either the club or the diamond finesse?

Uris saw that neither finesse would be needed if the clubs broke reasonably well, so he cautiously took the ace of clubs and led another club toward dummy. West could not afford to play low since then declarer, with no loss in clubs, could afford to give up a diamond trick.

Hence West had to put up his king of clubs.

West returned a diamond, but dummy put up the ace and cashed three good clubs so that South could discard three diamonds. The contract was thus bid boldly and brought home by careful play.

New Zealand Labor Strife Nearing End

AUCKLAND (Reuters) — New Zealand's labor war of the last five months showed signs of ending today.

The coal miners go back to work at midnight tonight. Industrial circles believe longshoremen will also return.

The miners, together with many seamen, went on strike to demand repeal of the government's emergency regulations, formulated to deal with the longshoremen's wage strike.

Collapse of the dock strike was indicated by an application of 152 members of the de-registered Waterside Workers' Union at Lyttelton, the country's third port, to join the new union.

Prime Minister Sidney Holland told the House of Representatives in Wellington tonight that, if the strike was almost over, the cabinet would meet as soon as possible to decide on repeal of emergency regulations.

HOLLYWOOD REVIEW

Economy Forces Popular Star To Sell His Yacht

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP). — Dana Andrews offers some insight on the economics of being a movie star with the announcement that he is selling his yacht.

Andrews' earning power hasn't changed. In fact, he probably draws about $2,500 a week. But he is offering his 80-foot prize ketch for sale. He said he has put $51,000 into the boat, which originally cost $350,000 to build. He'll let it go for $40,000, if he can find a taker.

"I found out owning a boat that size is a rich man's hobby," he remarked. "And I'm not a rich man. It's just like the crack J. P. Morgan was supposed to have made. Someone asked him how much a man had to earn to afford a yacht. He answered, 'If you have to figure it out, you can't afford it.' That's too true. 'My boat was costing me about $1,000 to $1,200 a month to run. That's about all I can save from my earnings. I was just robbing my family of the money by keeping the boat. So I decided to sell."

A milestone was passed this week with the announcement that L. B. Mayer was leaving the studio that bears his name. He has been closely identified with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer since he helped found it in 1924. (Samuel Goldwyn left the company before it started operation.)

Now there is conjecture that the company will drop the spelt-out title and be known only by the initials M.G.M.

New Materials Plan For Plants On Defense Work

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian manufacturers working on defense contracts have been placed on an equal footing with U.S. manufacturers for allocation of scarce materials, it was announced Tuesday.

The new American priority and allocation program, known as the controlled materials plan, went into effect formally July 1. It will allow Canadian industry to share equally with Americans the scarce supplies of American goods.

Essentially, the plan, embracing allocations of materials for three months at a time, is not expected to cause any drastic reduction in the production of consumer goods.

The scheme is designed to make big blocks of allocations at once rather than on a piecemeal, day-to-day basis.

STEEL MAIN INTEREST

The U.S. government has issued a priority scale covering three essential materials: steel, aluminum and copper. Canada buys some copper and aluminum from the U.S., but mainly she is interested in U.S. steel.

The manufacturer who gets a priority rating on U.S. steel for defense purposes, also gets priority on component parts.

For example, if a Canadian manufacturer gets a priority rating on parts of U.S. military trucks, his rating is good on all materials that are required to make those parts, including tin, electrical goods, instruments and so on.

Canada has nothing similar to the controlled materials plan, but assures, through an economic pact signed last fall, that American firms seeking materials in Canada will get treatment equal to that received by Canadian firms.

Canadian Ship Huron Blasts Red Positions

TOKYO (Wednesday) (CP) — The Canadian destroyer Huron scored seven direct hits on a railroad bridge and three on a highway span in the Songjin area of northern Korea, the United Nations naval summary said today.

The Huron has been operating off the east coast near the Korea-Manchuria border.

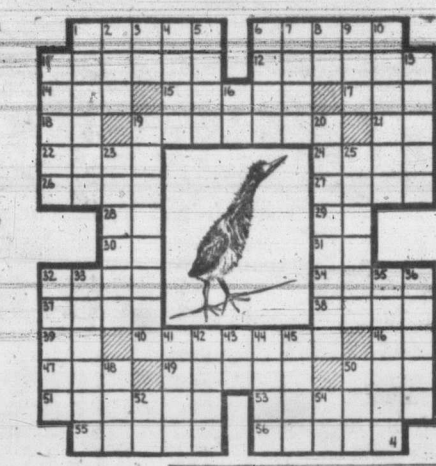

At Wonsan, working over buildings of military importance, troop areas and gun positions were the U.S. destroyers Evans, Blue and patrol frigate Everett. In the late afternoon the bombardment force was taken under fire by shore batteries and heavy enemy shelling lasted for about an hour and 15 minutes before the Communists were silenced.

Struck By Tornado

WEBB CITY, Mo. (UP) — A tornado struck a block area in the west-central district of this southwest Missouri town early today, caused extensive damage to homes and business buildings, but police said "by a miracle no one was seriously injured."

Power lines were smashed in the district, trees were felled and at least 27 houses suffered heavy damage, but several hours after the vicious winds struck, only one injured person had been reported.

Aldermen Chided

Aldermen had their knuckles rapped at city council meeting yesterday.

Board of police commissioners advised them recent published criticisms of the police by aldermen and city employees was not in the best interests of the city or police department.

The commission suggested that any lack of co-operation between city departments and the police should first be reported by council to the commission. Similarly, the board said, any complaints the police chief might have regarding another civic department would first be reported to the commission.

1,600 Registered For Summer School

The 1951 summer school for teachers officially opened with an assembly in Victoria High School's auditorium Tuesday. Some 1,600 teachers have registered from throughout B.C.

Principal speaker at the assembly was Dr. F. T. Fairley, deputy minister of education for B.C.

The convocation address was delivered by Dean G. R. Calvert, Acting chairman Walter Jeune represented the Greater Victoria School Board.

Harold Johns, director of the summer school, conducted the assembly and introduced this year's staff which includes educators from all over Canada and the northwest states.

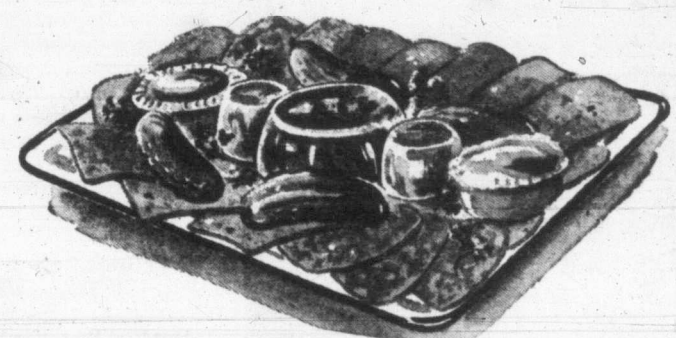

Dr. Fairley welcomed the teachers to Victoria and wished them success in their courses this summer. He announced the retirement of Mr. Johns and said he regretted that he must leave due to a departmental policy which allows a director to serve for a five-year period only. He told the assembly Mr. Johns would be replaced by F. H. Johnson, of the Victoria Normal School, at present Mr. Johns' assistant. Mr. Johns' directorship. A total of 76 courses had also been added, he said.
